Inverchapel Flying H For British Loan Parley

Treasury Silent After 2d Session About Dwindling English Dollars

By John W. Ball

Lord Inverchapel, British Ambassador to the United States, yesterday cut short his vacation in Scotland and is flying to Washington to take part in the British loan discussions, dispatches from London said last night.

Meantime, at the Treasury Department no word leaked out of the Anglo-American conference. The sessions yesterday, it was reported, were devoted entirely to "technical matters."

The decision to send Inverchapel back at once, according to a United Press dispatch from London, was made at an unexpected cabinet meeting.

British Buying Increased

The meeting was called, it was reported, by Prime Minister Attlee on cable reports of a letdown in negotiations from Sir Wilfrid Eady, leader of the British negotiators.

The cabinet meeting reportedly dealt with Britain's dwindling supply of dollars, which, at their present rate of disappearance, may vanish entirely next month.

There were also reports in London of a United States "get tough" policy at the Washington negotiations.

While the conference was in session at the Treasury Department, officials at the Commerce Department revealed that Britain was the only major European nation that increased its buying from this country in June.

Exports Sag 13 Per Cent

During June, American exports sagged 13 per cent, the first drop since the war. If trade concessions asked by the British negotiators are granted, a further reduction may result, officials predicted.

British purchases during June totaled $99,800,000, or $5,300,000 more than in May.

Among concessions the British are seeking is a modification of the "non-discrimination" clause of the loan agreement. This clause prevents England from "discriminating" against United States products unless she can get a lower price or better quality elsewhere. If the clause were relaxed, it would permit Britain to use more pounds and fewer dollars in buying imports.

France Shows Purchases

While British purchases were going up in June, other nations materially cut theirs. France cut her buying by 13 million dollars to a total of 75 million; Sweden dropped nearly 13 million to 37 million; the Netherlands about 11 million to a total of 24½ million. Most other European nations cut their purchases in about the same proportion.

Since June, however, Britain has announced a 500-million-dollar cut in imports for the rest of the year, chiefly from this country. If it succeeds in getting the privilege from the present negotiations of increasing trade in pounds with British dominions, she also may materially reduce American exports.

Also coming to this country besides Lord Inverchapel, will be Lord Chancellor Lord Jowitt, who sails today aboard the Queen Mary. British officials denied, however, that he was coming for the loan negotiations. Instead he will address bar associations in Cleveland.

But Her People Seem Unaware

By Eugene Meyer

Chairman of the Board of The Washington Post
(Mr. Meyer is in Europe to study economic conditions. He is accompanied by Alfred Friendly of The Washington Post's National Bureau.)

London, Aug. 19.—England faces what looks to be a major crisis. Emergency meetings of cabinet leaders in London and flights to Washington of financial experts indicate the gravity of the problem immediately ahead.

But people here seem to be unaware.

Explanation of the indifference by the majority of the citizens to a tough set of economic facts of life is that they simply have not been informed of them. Informed, that is, in a manner sufficiently forceful and candid to drive home the realities.

Leaders Utter No Warning
A diligent reader of the closing debates in Parliament and of editorials in the London Times and the Economist would, to be sure, find all the evidence which adds up to England's present plight. And there are, of course, many such readers and many leaders of industry, finance, the press, the Conservative Party and Labor Party itself who know the situation in all its difficulties.

But the fact remains that leaders of the Labor Party have not in plain language told their followers, or the people of Britain at large, how serious is their trouble.

It is a trouble which at best admits of a most painful and drastic solution—a tightening of a belt already drawn up close.

Churchill Laid It on Line

Not until last Saturday did the British people hear the situation presented to them in the gravity it deserves. Winston Churchill laid it on the line in straight terms none the less effective for being politically painful.

The facts of Britain's dollar crisis are simple to state, and their implications almost equally simple to understand. Her trade balance runs against her at a monthly rate of about 200 million dollars. She is drawing down her American loan at a rate which promises to exhaust it before the winter.

By no means all of the trouble arises from excessive import balances. The date for convertibility in the British-American loan agreement proves to have been premature. Partly this is due to the lack of industrial production in England; partly to a very hard freezing winter, followed by floods impairing agricultural production.

Therefore, there has been an abnormal drain on English dollar balances to pay for abnormal imports. Also there has, no doubt, been a considerable transfer of sterling in dollar balances, which in 1931 was called a "right from the pound." That was followed, as will be remembered, by disastrous results to trade all over the world.

To remedy Britain's adverse trade balance by a substantial increase in exports, first of all necessitates a jump in coal production of about 30 million tons a year, a rise of more than 15 per cent.

At the moment, there are few hopeful signs of a coal production increase of those proportions. This means, then, that there is looming a crisis in Britain, in terms so unmistakable as to need no telling, whether by Labor Party officials or the Conservative opposition. It will be revealed not merely in the heavy cuts previously announced in tobacco, American films, and a 90 million-dollar monthly drop in food imports (already one sixth of the total expenditure for food) but by greatly increased cuts leading to a severe drop in the living standard.

No Effective Warning
For visitors to England, the surprise is not in the economic facts; their essentials all have been well known in America for many months. It is rather in the British government's reaction to those facts.

Strike Ended AFL Counsel Struck at Labor Probe

Automotive Supply Firm Waives Right To Sue; Union's Privilege Restricted

Detroit, Aug. 19 (AP)—The Murray Corp. of America, waiving its right to court action under the Taft-Hartley Law, today won an agreement from the CIO United Auto Workers settling a 29-day strike of 7000 employees.

In return, the union laced tight restrictions about its members' rights to strike and completely outlawed slowdown and sitdown strikes.

The company also granted a 15-cent an hour wage increase retroactive to May 1.

The contract runs until January 31, 1949.

Created Bottleneck
The walkout of Murray employees July 21 created an automotive supply bottleneck affecting 65,000 production workers in other Detroit plants.

President Clarence Avery of the company, said the agreement was "in accordance with the provisions of the Taft-Hartley Law."

Union spokesmen hailed it as a "completely satisfactory" answer to a demand for immunity from Taft-Hartley penalty provisions.

Earlier, they had termed the company a "beasthead" in the union's national campaign to obtain such immunity.

The agreement outlawed without qualification the slowdown and sitdown strike.

Wildcat Strikes Outlawed
The union agreed not to strike over production standards, over certain unspecified "management prerogatives" or for a chance in the contract itself.

Further, the UAW-CIO agreed not to authorize any strike or picketing until sanction was given by the International Union and until 45 days had elapsed from the filing of any grievance.

In event of an unauthorized strike, the union promised immediately to post notices directing its members to return to their jobs.

An unauthorized strike, it was further agreed, would give the company the right to discharge participants unless the union objected. In the latter case the discharges would be treated as grievances and no strike would be called unless sanctioned by the International 45 days after the grievance was filed.

Precludes Damage Suits
In return for these promises, the company agreed:

"That neither the union, its officers, agents or members shall be liable for damages for unauthorized stoppages, strikes, intentional slowdowns or suspension of work x x x."

Avery hailed the accord as recognizing "the principle of union responsibility."

The break in the flow of body frames from Murray forced Ford Motor Co. to close its Mercury and Lincoln assembly lines, idling 4000 workers. Ford also placed 51,000 other employees on a three-day week.

Studebaker Corp. laid off an estimated 10,000 other production workers as a result of the Murray dispute.

Red Cross Closing Set

Hem-line battle lines are forming in Washington for the great fashion controversy since the steps supplanted the bloomer.

Style edicts have lowered women's skirts to half calf.

To a branding half of nonconformists, a skirt at half-calf is a sad gesture to departed common sense. To others, it is a banner of fashion to be followed to the inch, though buffeted by the winds of controversy.

By yesterday, opposition to the lowering hem line was as busy as alteration seamstresses, who tolled over hot sewing machines

Russian Vetoes Kill U. N. Action Now on Greek Border Strife

Speaking With Gloves Off U. S. Must Keep Strong Stand Against Russia, Harriman Says

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 19 (AP)—The ability of the United States to launch immediate, airborne atomic retaliation is "the greatest possible deterrent against the use of military force by others," according to Secretary of Commerce W. Averell Harriman.

This country, he said, must be the "standard-bearer of freedom" against a rampant Russian imperialism that has submerged nearly all of eastern Europe and now menaces western Europe.

Harriman, former United States Ambassador to Russia, used unusually blunt language about the Soviet Union in an address last night before the Pacific Northwest Trade Association and the Seattle Chamber of Commerce.

Says Russia Spills World
He said a group of "the most aggressive revolutionists of all time" seized power in Russia and "split the world into two groups—one believing in and one opposed to a 'bill of rights'."

"The United States now finds itself overwhelmingly the strongest free power to meet this threat to free institutions," Harriman said in one of the strongest indictments of present-day Russia yet made by a top Administration official.

There are, Harriman said, four factors in the struggle to preserve our own way of life and that of other free peoples—economic strength at home, a strong, well-balanced military establishment, leadership in development of the United Nations, and relief of hunger, cold, disease and despair wherever possible.

'Compelling Restraint'
As for the military factor, Harriman said, a strong air force, if powerful enough, "can be a compelling restraint upon those with aggressive motivations."

"In this atomic age there is no protection against retaliation by air. Our ability to launch an immediate strong retaliation by air is the greatest possible deterrent against the use of military force by others."

"Our peaceful intentions are so clearly understood the world over that no man who has peaceful purposes fears the military strength of the United States."

"His only fear is that the United States will not maintain a strong enough military power to discourage aggressive intentions."

Harriman declared that following World War II a "new and more threatening imperialism—that of the police state—has come into the world."

The Commerce Secretary set forth his own four-point program for meeting what he called "this See HARRIMAN, Page 2, Col. 6

Security Council Refers Problem To the Assembly Opening Sept. 16

Lake Success, Aug. 19 (AP)—The United Nations Security Council tonight admitted its inability to solve the explosive Balkan problem after Russia invoked the big power veto to kill two more American-supported attempts at a solution.

At the end of a stormy session, the sixtieth council meeting held on the Balkan question Council President Paris El Khoury of Syria told the delegates there was nothing left but to refer the problem to the 55-nation General Assembly which meets in New York September 16 and to inform the assembly that the veto had paralyzed the council.

Herschel V. Johnson, deputy United States delegate, said after the meeting that if the assembly also failed to find a solution, the United States would consider new steps. He said there was nothing in the U. N. charter to prevent joint military action in defense of Greece.

El Khoury then announced that the 11-nation council would hold no further meetings on the Balkan question.

Gromyko's Vetoes Total 16
Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko ran Russia's string of vetoes up to 16 with his two this evening. He had invoked this special voting privilege three times yesterday to block the admission of Ireland, Portugal and Transjordan into the U. N.

The Balkan proposals he killed were:

1. An Australian resolution, supported by the United States, to order Greece, Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia to "cease all acts of provocation" and to try to settle their differences by direct negotiations.

2. An American resolution, declaring that Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia "were threatening peace by aiding Greek guerrillas and ordering them to stop such actions immediately."

The vote on both was 9 to 2, with Russia and Poland casting the negative ballots. Under the U. N. Charter, all decisions on matters of importance must be made by seven affirmative votes, including all five major powers.

Australian Scores Gromyko
Australian delegate Col. W. R. Hodgson immediately delivered a scorching attack on Gromyko's repeated use of the veto. He called it "the most vicious instrument ever utilized by man to prevent the prevailing of democracy."

He told the council he had just received a report that the subsidiary commission of the Balkan investigating commission had just voted nine to two that the three Soviet satellites were guilty of "ten deliberate border violations" against Greece.

El Khoury said the subsidiary group would remain in the Balkans indefinitely as a result of the council's failure to take decisive action. Gromyko declared the proposals he had vetoed were part of a "political game." He then challenged El Khoury's ruling that the subsidiary group should continue. He said the groups had "exhausted their tasks" and should be considered "liquidated."

President's Ruling Holds
Johnson and British Delegate Sir Alexander Cadogan supported El Khoury's ruling, which continued to hold as the meeting adjourned, subject to call of any delegate.

The meeting began with a conference See BALKAN, Page 2, Column 1

Attlee to Quit Soon, London Paper Says

Daily Mail Writer Says Health Given As Reason; Bevin Picked as Successor

London, Aug. 19 (AP).—The Daily Mail said tonight that Prime Minister Clement Attlee "has told his closest colleagues in the government that for reasons of health he intends to resign the premiership in the near future."

A page one story by Wilson Broadbent, the Mail's veteran political correspondent, reported "it was said in usually well-informed circles last night that Mr. Attlee will nominate Mr. Ernest Bevin, the foreign secretary, as his successor."

Although Attlee had been under fire from a substantial section of his own Labor Party for his handling of Britain's economic crisis, the Mail's story was the first report that the Prime Minister might resign.

Cabinet Members Silent

The Mail said that Sunday—when Attlee and his cabinet ministers held a secret meeting at No. 10 Downing Street—the Prime Minister agreed to carry on until the British-American loan revision talks in Washington had passed their critical stage.

New York and other American cities—engagements made months ago, it was stated.

Immediately after the sudden cabinet meeting London reported that Prime Minister Attlee left for North Wales and Foreign Secretary Bevin left for the South Coast to resume vacation cut short by the financial crisis.

This was taken to indicate that they felt there was little they could do at present in London—that affairs would have to await the results of Inverchapel's intervention into the present discussions.

Lord President of the Council Herbert Morrison remained as acting Prime Minister. Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton, also stayed at his desk.

Meanwhile Undersecretary of State William L. Clayton was to arrive in London today for conferences with Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the Board of Trade.

At London the general council of the Trades Union Congress, powerful labor union alliance behind the Labor government, recommended speedy modernization and reequipment of Britain's basic industries—coal, electricity, and transport.

The council's report criticized the government's goal of 200 million tons of coal for 1947 as "almost trifling with the question."

It urged the target be raised by 20 million tons.

London, Aug. 19.—British coal production slumped by more than two million tons in July as compared with June.

Average weekly production in July was 3,332,200 tons, whereas the June weekly output was 3,551,300. Annual holidays led to a substantial reduction in the number of men in the mines, it was said.

Veterinarians Open Fight on Alien Disease

Cincinnati, Aug. 19 (AP).—A two-continent battle against foreign diseases which afflict animals, particularly cattle, was launched by the American Veterinary Medical Association today with the organization of an inter-American veterinarians congress.

The AVMA house of representatives, with delegates from every state, will work in conjunction with the Pan-American sanitary bureau in setting up a hemisphere defense against the diseases.

Moscow, Aug. 19 (AP).—The Soviet public today heard the news it had been eagerly awaiting—that the "tense struggle" for bread already was being won in the largest grain-producing areas of the Soviet Union.

Pravda said, "The country has passed the significant turning point in the development of its agriculture and strengthening of its food base."

action, but Mr. Truman obviously intends to keep pressing for special legislation.

The House Judiciary Committee completed hearings on the Stratton bill to admit 400,000 displaced persons over a four-year period. Somewhat similar legislation has been introduced by nine senators. Ugo Carusi and Watson Miller both are familiar figures in Washington.

Ewing Born in Indiana

Oscar R. Ewing, like Miller, was born in Indiana. He worked for a time on the Greensburg, Ind., Times. At the University of Indiana, he was a classmate of Paul McNutt and Wendell Willkie. He worked his way through the Harvard Law School by waiting on the table, and edited the Harvard Law Review with two men who are now United States senators, Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Owen Brewster of Maine. He served in World War I, practiced law in New York with the Charles E. Hughes, father and son, and in 1940 became assistant chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

He left the committee to prosecute William D. Pelly, the Silver Shirts leader, who received a prison sentence of 15 years. More recently he was special prosecutor in the treason trial of Douglas Chandler in Boston. Chandler was given a life sentence.

As Federal Security Administrator, Ewing might be in line for a Cabinet post if that agency should be raised to the Department of Health, Education and Security, as proposed in the Taft-Fulbright bill.

facts. The visitor is surprised to realize:

1. Attlee's government has given no effective warning to its people;
2. It has acted late and without the necessary realism or vigor.

On this second point the government has, as mentioned above, prescribed certain import reductions. In Washington it is attempting an easing of the onerous convertibility and nondiscrimination terms of its loan. In Paris it seeks measures for reviving and rationalizing European commerce. But these facts, fine as far as they go, do not meet Britain's own present crisis.

For the rest, the government has spoken vaguely of more food imports from "soft currency" countries but there seems to be little food in those countries to be sent out. It has issued an order which purports to be a renewal of wartime conscription of labor, to force more people into essential industries and thus increase exports. Yet it is taken for granted that sanctions dare not be applied, and the order is in effect not enforceable.

Shinwell, Minister of Fuel and Power, appears to be taking direction from the coal miners, rather than showing leadership toward more production. Neither he nor anyone else in the Labor Party has forcefully put the case to them that they must produce more by harder work, longer hours and acceptance of more men, including displaced persons, into the mines if England is to restore a going economy.

Charge Dismissed, Son of Capitol Architect Freed

Disorderly conduct charges against South T. Lynn, 20-year-old son of David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, and two companions, were dismissed in Silver Spring yesterday when the complainant failed to identify the youths.

Trial Magistrate William Wheeler dismissed the charges when Mrs. Virginia Cox, 9516 Silgo Creek pky., Silver Spring, who swore out the warrants, said she could not identify any member of the trio as the utterer of "Althy remarks" to her on July 26.

Lynn, who lives at 3700 Quebec st. nw., and Edward E. Cissell, 20, of 3108 38th st. nw., and John R. Simmel, 19, of 4624 3d pl. nw., pleaded not guilty to the charges. Lynn previously forfeited $19.35 collateral on charges of failing to observe a stop sign, reckless driving and speeding.

3. Russia also strongly supported the Indonesian plea for Council commissions of investigation and arbitration, declaring the case must be settled inside the Council.

4. Australia, mover of the original resolution for a Council Commission, rejected the Chinese amendment and said the Council should first dispatch a five-nation body of investigation to Indonesia and then turn to arbitration.

Warfare Order Given

5. The Indonesian commander in chief in Java broadcast an order to his troops to prepare for prolonged warfare. The message came after the Netherlands army there announced "drastical retaliatory measures" had been taken against Indonesian forces.

Sjahrir told the delegates in an emergency meeting called at the request of Russia:

"Surely this Council can see for itself how valueless it will be to resume direct negotiations when it is borne in mind that Dutch soldiers have overrun more than half of Java and stand poised to strike at the capital of the republic (Jakarta)."

He said the Indonesian apprehensions were not set at ease even if such negotiations "are begun under the good offices of some country such as the United States."

"It is clear to us that Dutch military actions are aimed at the destruction of the republic," the former premier said from his seat across the table from Dr. Selco N. van Klyffens, the Dutch Ambassador.

"Everything points to one conclusion—that the Dutch are fully determined to put an end to the Indonesian Republic."

Johnson denied that the United States was exerting any pressure on the Indonesians and said Russia was "attributing all sorts of motives to the United States which we never thought of."

Gromyko, replying to Dutch contentions that the U. N. had no jurisdiction in the case, said:

"The Indonesian government relies on the Security Council and expects help from it. The Netherlands acts as if this organization does not exist at all."

The government of the Netherlands which said that they perpetrated a crude attack on the Indonesians. They even demand that the Indonesians not interfere with Dutch troops."

Debate Adjourned

The Council adjourned the debate until Friday with Australian, Chinese and Polish proposals under consideration. The Polish amendment would add a commission of arbitration.

In Washington, the State Department said the U. S. withdrew its offer after Indonesia refused to accept without qualification the U. S. proposal that it bring the two countries together.

Indonesia had insisted that the Security Council take jurisdiction—a condition which the State Department found unacceptable in offering to serve as a go-between.

(The announcement said: "The Netherlands government, the Indonesian authorities and the Security Council are being informed of the lapse of our offer. Such lapse, however, does not end our concern in the matter, as was indicated in the Department's statement of August 16. We continue to be interested and desire to be helpful in achieving a peaceful solution.")

Marshall met for an hour with Bramuglia and said afterward, "We discussed all main points of the treaty and exchanged views."

When newsmen asked Bramuglia whether unanimity in voting procedure came up at the meeting the Argentine official replied, "No, we only discussed general matters." Argentina has come out for unanimity on treaty enforcement action while the U. S. favors a two-thirds majority rule except when the use of force is involved.

On the matter of Argentina's request for a special inter-American conference on economic aid Bramuglia said "We are impressed by the importance of economic cooperation among the Americas. We would like to leave to the conference whether a special meeting should be held before or after at Bogota next January."

Lee Sees Criticism As Stab in Back

News Group Tours Points Mentioned By Ruark in Stories on Italian Command

By Edgar Clark

Leghorn, Italy, Aug. 19 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. John C. H. Lee, United States commander in the Mediterranean, said today that the criticism of his command by Scripps-Howard Columnist Robert C. Ruark was a "stab in the back" and "an injustice to the United States."

Lee made his statement in his suite at an Army requisitioned hotel in Viareggio to a group of American newspapermen.

"I consider the series of articles criticizing the Italian command not only an injustice to the United States," Lee said.

Lee's statement was made after newsmen had returned from a point-to-point guided tour of the places mentioned in the articles. The tour included a trip from Rome to Leghorn aboard Lee's de luxe private eight-car train, a conference with Maj. Gen. Lawrence Jaynes, chief of staff of MTOUSA (Mediterranean Theater of Operations, United States Army) and more than 20 full colonels of Lee's staff, visits to Army requisitioned hotels in Viareggio, inspection of the Army's outdoor prison near Pisa and informal talks with soldiers and officers.

Basic Mission Outlined

Lee said he had visited Maj. Gen. Ira T. Wyche, Inspector General, here to conduct an investigation.

Before the statement was put into its agreed form by newsmen and Lee, this correspondent asked him to define his basic mission here. Lee replied:

"My basic mission is to maintain and supply troops in Italy and in the disputed border province of Venezia Giulia until ratification of the peace treaty."

He sidestepped a question concerning his mission in the event of hostilities involving Russian satellites or Russian troops along the Italian border, smilingly saying that in such an event "I would carry on."

Lee and the newsmen framed the general statement defining the attacks "an injustice to the United States," after a rough draft had called them "a disservice to the country."

Attacks Held Untimely

Although Lee and his staff refused officially to respond to questions regarding the potential effects of the articles, they carefully pointed out that the stay of United States troops in Italy may be indefinite rather than temporary in view of Russia's delay in ratifying the peace treaty.

Unofficially, several high-ranking staffers described the articles "inopportune" in view of "the worsening relations with Russia." One staff member, in an off-the-record talk, suggested that the attack may be "Communist-inspired."

"It is worth investigating who is interested in knocking down our Army in times like these," this officer said.

Lee said that the attacks came at a time when he badly needed replacements, money, munitions and supplies, and added that they were "bad for the morale of the entire command." He referred to a letter received from the mother of one soldier after the articles appeared, quoting her as saying that the articles "made my son a liar."

Libel Not Considered

Discussing the visit by Wyche, who left Washington yesterday and is expected to arrive here tomorrow, Lee said that "this is the first time a theater commander has requested an investigation on the basis of newspaper charges."

Asked by newsmen whether he had considered libel proceedings against Ruark, Lee said he had not.

Officers conducting the tour gave Lee's special train and other matters brought up in the articles special attention. Later, the newsmen were free to question any soldier or officer they desired.

The special train left Rome at midnight and arrived here early the next morning with the general, three of his aides, the wife of one and a military police detachment.

Before the train's departure, Lee took the correspondents on a personally conducted tour through the baggage coach, which carried two jeeps, to the lounge car at the end. The latter is equipped with a small bar, radio and motion picture projection booth.

Italy Furnishes Train

Lee pointed out the train was furnished by the Italian government. Other generals, such as Gen. Mark Clark, had special trains and they are used in Germany, he said.

My accommodation was a small two-bunk drawing room. The quarters were neat, clean and comfortable but not luxurious and were below the standards of ordinary American Pullmans.

The general's trailer, which allegedly cost $14,000, also was discussed by Lee and his staff, who said it had been shipped to the United States almost three months ago.

Col. H. F. Bigelow, the general's ordnance officer, said that less than $50 had been spent in making it from surplus equipment and that its overall value was $1500. Lee said it was a 1946 model sent to Clark for "sentimental reasons."

Lee said that his C-47 was part of the basic equipment allowance for theater commanders. He described as normal the two other staff C-47s, one of which transports Lee's jeep and other bulky stuff while the other is assigned to his chief of staff.

At a full staff conference, which Lee did not attend, the entire general staff made a collective defense of the "Fellowship of U. S.-British Commanders." They denied that there had been any coercion, but admitted that "certain junior officers" may have been "over-enthusiastic" in persuading men to join this group. Many soldiers I talked to told me they had not been happy about joining.

At the detention training camp, there were two rows of hot concrete cells with narrow slits for air in the solid steel doors. The cells were empty although initials carved on the wall bespoke of past occupancy.

Camp officials said that men did jump around as described in the Ruark articles but that it was part of the regular army physical exercises.

Negro Press Praises Lee's Methods in Italy

The National Negro Press Association came to the defense of Lieut. Gen. C. H. Lee yesterday, asserting that colored troops in his Italian command "prefer life under him in Italy to life in the United States."

In a dispatch written by Louis R. Lautier and transmitted to Negro publications, the association said colored troops enjoy more "democracy" under Lee than they did in other Army commands or in civilian life in the United States.

"If General Lee had not taken the initiative in giving colored soldiers in Europe an opportunity to fight as infantrymen along with white soldiers, perhaps the experiment never would have been made," Lautier wrote.

Mrs. Roosevelt Plans to Raise Xmas Trees

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt disclosed today that she and her son Elliott have gone into partnership on a "commercial" basis to raise Christmas trees on the late President's Hyde Park estate.

Writing in her syndicated newspaper column, "My Day," Mrs. Roosevelt said that last week she acquired title to two-thirds of the Hyde Park land.

"We cannot afford to keep it just as a country place the way that my husband's mother did," Mrs. Roosevelt wrote. "We hope now to run the farm on a large enough scale to make it a real business."

Legionnaires to Honor J. J. Malloy at Dinner

The District of Columbia Department of the American Legion will give a testimonial dinner at the Mayflower Hotel at 7 o'clock tonight, for Joseph J. Malloy, District candidate for national commander.

Malloy, Washington attorney, has served as Legion national executive committee member from the District for the past 13 years. A private in World War I, he reached the rank of lieutenant colonel in World War II after participating in action in several campaigns.

They show their preference in skirts yesterday at the Meridian Hill Hotel for Government girls.

Moines, Iowa, both FBI employees, Odette Myrtil, the Madame Le Fleur of Victor Herbert's "The Red Mill," now at the National. Mile. Myrtil owns a dress shop in Beverly Hills, Calif.

"I," she declared, "am anti-fashion. I am only conscious of what a woman looks best in. I definitely don't believe women should wear some things; they should know what looks good on them."

"I like long skirts, but not if it makes a woman look like she's standing in a hole!" But the strife will never settle the issue: Do women dress to please other women or to please men?

Neat Delete

Florence Sniegowski, visiting the Meridian Hills from Chicago, thinks for the other faction. "Short skirts show off the figure better. Longer ones cut off the neatest portion of the leg."

Salient points in the controversy shape up like this: Economy, comfort and why not show a pretty leg vs. fashion, more femininity and more grace.

The attack of the nonconformists, although not past the passive-resistance stage, is spearheaded by the League of Women Shoppers, who would give the kiss of death to divers extravaganzas.

It has a stalwart ally in the 4-month-old Lizzie Stone League for Abolition of Long Dresses for Daytime. Ellsabet M. Stone, of 8225 Sligo pkwy., Green Meadows, is practically on the outskirts of a national campaign.

Fears Links Will Be Sticks

"They're uncomfortable and look horrible," muttered the League founder. "They'll show only that part of the leg between the calf and the ankle and that is sticks or piano legs. If the women want to know what they'll look like, let them go through their albums of the late 1920's."

The League of Women Shoppers has been counseling members to use "common sense."

Mrs. Sylvia Wubing, 1816 Kalorama rd. n.w., the League's national legislation chairman, observes:

"If a woman feels like it and has the money and material, let her have her wardrobe lengthened. If it costs time or money for substantial alterations, leave them where they are."

Word From the Smart Set

In the smart shop of a Georgetown couturier, no such resistance is found. "None of the smart clientele either in Washington or New York is buying short dresses," said the proprietor.

Remarkably neutral, but scornful of fashion as such, is Mile. Yanks Attacked in Berlin for their approval. If they approve the findings, Captain James can be reinstated immediately. Already he has lost thirty-three days pay amounting to at least $440.

Captain James upon being notified by reporters of the findings of the board said, "That is terrible." After a conference with his attorney, Ronah F. Camaller, James said he would appeal the recommendations as high as possible.

He has five days in which to notify the Commissioner of the appeal and 10 days to file the appeal. Acting Chief of the Fire Department Frank G. Berry said that if an appeal is made he will not be able to reinstate Captain James until the appeal is decided.

The decision of the board was announced by Irving Bryan, assistant corporation counsel and chairman of the board. Other members were Battalion Chief W. E. Bowen, head of the Fire Department training school, and R. L. Mudd, assistant District auditor.

The findings followed closely the recommendations of the prosecutor, Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward A. Beard, who asked that James not be dismissed from the department but that he be reprimanded and fined.

Camaller said the findings sustained his contention at the trial that use of the gas-oil mixture was a common practice in the fire department.

Race Feeling Blamed For N. C. Band Action

Columbia, N. C., Aug. 19 (AP).—A spokesman for the fellowship of Southern churchmen today attributed the forced departure of a group of white students from a Negro home here on "the interracial character of their work."

The announcement by the group followed disclosure yesterday by Sheriff Ray Cohoon of Tyrrell County that a band of nearly 300 men had ordered six youthful students to leave this eastern North Carolina town. The group complied within 24 hours, on August 11.

The organization was described as a group which is opposed to racial segregation and believes in "living as Christ would live."

Those attending the meeting were Senators Tobey, McCarthy and Sparkman (D. Ala.) and Representatives Gamble, Sundstrom (R., N. J.), McMillen (R., Ill.), Fletcher (R., Cal.), Boggs (D., La.) and Patman (D., Tex.).

Members of the joint committee who did not attend yesterday's session were Senators Flanders (R., Vt.), Cain (R., Wash.), Taylor (D., Idaho) and Wagner (D., N. Y.), and Representative Rains (D., Ala.).

McCarthy told reporters that in the voting on all issues today the lineup was 5 to 4, with five Republicans voting in the majority and the verbal battle with Tobey, he offered to shake Tobey's hand, but that the latter refused.

The friction between the two Republican Senators dates back to their bitter differences over the Taft-Elliender-Wagner bill to set up a long-range housing program.

100 Million Oil Importing Firm Formed

Formation of a new 100-million-dollar oil company to bring foreign petroleum into the United States was announced here last night.

The new firm, known as the American-Independent Oil Co., was incorporated in Delaware by independent oil companies.

President of the firm is Ralph K. Davies, former vice president of Standard Oil of California, and wartime deputy petroleum administrator.

"For the first time in our history, we are importing more oil than we export," Davies said. "Demand has increased and will continue to increase. It is therefore obviously in the National interest that we supplement our domestic supplies with oil resources beyond our shores."

In addition to Davies, the officers of the company include K. S. Adams, Sam B. Mosher and J. Howard Marshall as vice presidents.

The 11 independent oil producers who incorporated the firm, with 100,000 shares of paid-in stock at $100 a share, were:

J. S. Abernethy of Houston, Tex.; Allied Oil Co. of Cleveland, Ashland Oil & Refining Co. of Kentucky, Ralph K. Denies Romance But Keeps Date

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
VIRGINIA WARREN

18-year-old daughter of Gov. Earl Warren of California, was at home to receive Gov. James E. Folsom of Alabama, a 38-year-old widower, when he appeared at the Warren summer home in Santa Monica to make a date to go dancing. Folsom had "no comment" when asked about his possible marriage to Miss Warren. And she, when asked about his interest in her, declared, "My goodness, I've only seen him three times."

CIO Officers May Not File Affidavits

By the United Press

The CIO served notice yesterday that its officers probably will not file "non-Communist" affidavits under the Taft-Hartley law, but an AFL spokesman said his organization "in all probability" would file them.

At the same time, President Harvey W. Brown of the International Association of Machinists—the Nation's biggest independent union—said its officers would sign the affidavits immediately in order to use the services of the National Labor Relations Board.

NLRB General Counsel Robert N. Denham ruled formally that under the new labor act, effective Friday, all union officers must swear they are not Communists before their unions can seek the board's protection on a collective bargaining election, an unfair labor practice complaint or a union shop vote.

It was pointed out that failure to file the affidavits does not constitute a violation of the law. They are required only if a union wishes to use the board's services.

A CIO spokesman said that since CIO policy already is to ignore the NLRB, "it is to be presumed that it will also ignore for the time being the ruling on Communist affidavits." He said a formal decision would have to await the return here of top CIO officials, including President Philip Murray who is on vacation.

An AFL spokesman said that a formal announcement by his organization would be made when President William Green and other officials return here. Green is attending the annual convention of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor.

Denham said he would leave it up to the unions themselves as to what constituted an "officer."

Brown, who independent IAM yesterday complied with the Taft-Hartley law's requirements for registration of financial data, noted recent steps which his union's executive board has taken to strengthen its 22-year-old policy against communism.

OdT Lifts Embargo on Coal to Canada

By the United Press

The Office of Defense Transportation yesterday lifted its week-old embargo on coal shipments to Canada, which was imposed to offset an unduly large number of United States freight cars in Canada.

The restrictions, which applied to all shipments via the Canadian National Railways, will be cancelled as soon as the railroads receive official notice from the ODT. When the embargo was imposed, there were 10,124 more United States freight cars in Canada than Canadian cars in this country.

The adverse balance, ODT said, since has been reduced to 8654 cars.

ODT originally set an unfavorable car balance of 8000 as its goal. A unofficial said he believed the "impetus of the embargo" would reduce the number to this amount. Canadian National is the government-owned railroad system and operates 23,000 miles of line from coast to coast.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste

If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it causes uric acid, rheumatism, leprosy, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Kidneys may need help the same as bowels, so take your drugless dose of Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

20 Reported Found In Red Zone Grave

Berlin, Aug. 19 (AP)—The British-licensed newspaper Telegraph said today the bodies of more than 20 men, mysteriously shot, had been found in a shallow grave in a forest east of Berlin, in the Russian occupation zone. No confirmation was available. The newspaper declared it had information that "these men were not the victims of war action and were buried no longer than 9 to 20 weeks ago."

1951 Scout Jamboree Sought for California

Mosson, France, Aug. 19 (AP)—American representatives on the International Bureau of Scouting, meeting here at the close of the World Boy Scout Jamboree, said today they would place a bid for Santa Barbara, Calif., for the 1951 jamboree.

War Talk 'Amazes' Man From Ukraine

Never Once Heard Such in 16 Months In Soviet, UNRRA's Kiev Chief Says

By Robert Bruskin

The amount of war talk in Washington is "amazing" to an American freshly returned after 16 months in the Soviet Ukraine.

Paul F. White, chief of UNRRA's mission at Kiev, in the heart of the Soviet bread-basket, said yesterday he had never heard such talk back in Russia.

"In the two weeks I've been back, I've been amazed at talk of war by the man in the street here," said White, a former investment banker of Buffalo, who is now living at the Parkfairfax Apartments, Alexandria.

"It's amazing, but in the 16 months I was in the Soviet Union, I never once heard any such statement by the man in the street or by officials. The Ukraine is so badly wrecked it's a sacrifice for persons there even to think of war."

Campaign Conducted White said the Soviet government had been conducting an intensive propaganda campaign among the Ukrainians directed against the United States.

"It's primarily a campaign which severs American people from their government," he added. "But in spite of it, Americans are still the most popular people. The United States is still the land of technique, which is, after all, the real Soviet God."

White said he traveled about 22,000 miles without difficulty inside Russia during the 16 months. Although he believed that there

Jew Is Killed By Gunfire From British Truck

Jerusalem, Palestine, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—One Jew was killed and one was wounded slightly today when occupants of a British army truck fired on two buses at Rishon le Zion, eight miles southeast of Tel Aviv, an official statement said tonight.

Witnesses asserted the truck occupants wore British uniforms.

A Jew walking near Petah Tiqva, seven miles east of Tel Aviv, was attacked by two Arabs. British authorities today lifted the curfew in the border area between Jewish Tel Aviv and Arab Jaffa, where the most serious Jewish-Arab rioting took place last week.

Negro's House Blasted; Object of Zone Suits

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 19 (U.P.).—A Negro coal miner's new house, object of three recent court suits under the city's white-Negro zoning laws, was damaged by a dynamite blast last night, Sheriff Holt McDowell reported today.

Hungary Catholic Leader Protests

Budapest, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, primate of Hungary, has sent a letter to Premier Lajos Dinnyes protesting that "a considerable number" of Catholics have been "deprived of their right to vote" in the August 31 elections.

The letter, written on behalf of the Hungarian Council of Bishops, added:

"It is essential that the Hungarian government find a method of correcting these abuses in due time, and that it should not endanger the country by having elections, the fairness and validity of which can be doubted."

The Hungarian government announced today that Stefan Kertesz, minister to Rome, has been suspended. No official reason for the suspension was given, the United Press said.

[At the time of the Communist coup which ousted Premier Ferenc Nagy, there were rumors that Kertesz had sent word to Budapest that he would work for Hungary abroad but would not return here.]

Petrillo Bars Dual Programs By FM, AM; Doubles Jobs

Chicago, Aug. 19 (U.P.)—James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, refused today to permit AM and FM radio stations to broadcast the same union-produced music simultaneously.

Petrillo sent telegrams to heads of the radio networks to announce the union's decision. He said the policy would mean that affiliated AM and FM stations must each hire their own musicians.

Petrillo also announced at a news conference that the union had decided to "set aside for the time being at least" its plans to manufacture its own musical recordings.

The networks, at a conference with Petrillo here July 31, had asked that FM stations with AM affiliations be allowed to broadcast simultaneously the musical programs of the AM stations.

"The federation holds that FM broadcasting is separate and distinct from AM broadcasting," Petrillo said. "The Federal Communications Commission licenses each FM station separately, assigns individual call letters and channels, and the station is required to comply with all FCC regulations."

"Many FM stations have no affiliation with either an AM station or a network and could not possibly enjoy the benefits of AM programs even if the federation were willing to permit this dual service. Certainly the FM station with no AM affiliations is just as deserving and should not have to suffer this competitive disadvantage."

"The federation does not insist that FM stations employ musicians," he said. "But if they do need musicians, locals will be ready and willing to negotiate contracts."

Czech Detains U. S. Delegate To Youth Fete

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 19 (U.P.)—A Czech army officer held an American girl delegate to the World Youth Festival prisoner for two hours Sunday because she refused to hand over a leaflet denouncing the leadership of the festival as Communist, it was announced today through the United States Embassy.

The girl is Eleanor Roberts of Detroit, Mich., a student at Connecticut College for Women. A statement which American delegates released through the embassy said the Czech officer was Lieut. Michal Janick.

Besides holding her prisoner from 2 a. m. to 4 a. m. Sunday, the delegates charged, he told her that "the entire political police force of Yugoslavia" would be brought into the case, unless the leaflets she was preparing to distribute at a Sunday parade and to newspapers were surrendered.

The United States Embassy said it did not intend to investigate the case, but the Czech Ministry of Information had promised to make an inquiry.

Attempt Made on Life Of Burmese Official

Rangoon, Burma, Aug. 19 (U.P.)—Five gunmen were reported officially today to have attempted to kill Finance Minister Tin Tut.

Heavy shooting also was reported during the night in Rangoon.

The official statement said more than 150 persons were arrested early yesterday "for security reasons."

Chiang Sees Wedemeyer

Nanking, Aug. 19 (U.P.)—Official sources today reported that Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer gave Chiang Kai-shek a "very frank" and presumably critical report on conditions in Formosa, Canton and Shanghai in a five hour conference.

Rep. Harness Defines Words For Marshall

Representative Harness (R., Ind.) defined for Secretary of State Marshall yesterday the difference between propaganda and information and said he wanted to ease the secretary's mind about the inquiry his committee plans.

Harness is chairman of a House subcommittee investigating Government publicity and propaganda. He wrote Marshall that there is no intention of interfering with spreading proper information, only with "unlawful and improper" influencing of legislation.

To distinguish between information and propaganda, Harness said, the committee has adopted these definitions:

"Information: The act or process of communicating knowledge; to enlighten."

"Propaganda: A plan for the propagation of a doctrine or a system of principles."

Harness wrote Marshall that some reports of a speech he made to the House July 25 might lead to a "misunderstanding" regarding an investigation of the State Department.

The chairman said then that the committee staff had been instructed "to keep a close watch on the propaganda of the State Department in favor of the so-called Marshall Plan for the rehabilitation of Europe." He drew a line between proper enlightenment and "compelling propaganda."

Rebels Driven From Capital, Paraguay Say

Asuncion, Paraguay, Aug. 19 (P). The Paraguayan government declared today that the would-be rebel besiegers of Asuncion were on the run and announced that a fleet of rebel river craft had surrendered unconditionally.

No firing from the fighting between insurgents and government forces has been heard in this city for two days. There are no signs of fighting in the center of the city which the rebels at one time claimed to have reached.

The Asuncion police chief summoned all stores, banks and factories to resume normal operations, declaring the government had definitely eliminated any danger of rebel penetration.

Files Show Japs Saw Pacific War As Only a Start

Tokyo, Aug. 18 (UPI)—Files in the Tokyo war crimes tribunal disclosed today that Japan's military "elder statesmen" regarded the Pacific war as merely a preliminary stage of a far more important conflict.

The document revealed that those architects of Japan's military might regarded the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, December 7, 1941, as one designed to consolidate strength for a Japanese-led Asiatic war against the United States, Britain and Russia as much as 20 years later.

The paper was prepared in January of 1942 and the far-reaching plan was known as the "Total War Research Institute."

The document, now on file with the tribunal trying 25 former Japanese war leaders on war crimes charges, shows that Japan's top-ranking retired admirals and generals wrote what amounted to a "blueprint" for aggressive warfare.

17 Countries Near End of Trade Talks

Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 19 (AP).—Delegates of 17 nations represented at international trade talks here neared the end of debate tonight on a charter for the proposed International Trade Organization, which is expected to come into existence in the summer of 1948.

Both United Kingdom and United States spokesmen expressed "general satisfaction" with the proposed charter, which is designed to eliminate trade barriers, maintain productive employment and raise the standard of living. The instrument will go to the world trade conference in Havana in November for final action.

After four months of negotiations here, both the British and American delegates said they got virtually what they wanted. Both delegations admitted tariff negotiations, carried on simultaneously, remained "up in the air."

U. S. Undersecretary of State William Clayton is expected tomorrow to proceed from Paris to London, to join Clair Wilcox, chief U. S. negotiator here, for a conference with Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the British Board of Trade, on United States efforts to obtain reductions in empire preferences.

United States victories in the negotiations were listed by American delegates as:

1. Protection of foreign investments on equal terms with indigenous capital and adequate compensation in event of seizure.
2. Equitable treatment of American movie films abroad after a fixed quota of national products is given priority.
3. ITO must give prior approval before quantitative restrictions on imports can be imposed by economically underdeveloped countries. Generally the charter frowns on quantitative restrictions unless ITO finds a national economy demands special measures.
4. Limits were established on restrictive business practices such as cartels.
5. Commodity agreements providing for cooperation by ITO members in meeting surplus production problems.
6. The International Monetary Fund shall determine when a nation is in balance of payments difficulties. (The United States voting power in the fund is about 31 per cent).

Parley Opens Friday
Paris, Aug. 19.—The three-power conference on increasing the level of Germany's production will open in London on Friday, it was learned from diplomatic sources today.

Lewis W. Douglas, Ambassador to Britain, will lead the American delegation at the meeting of American, British and French diplomats.

Texas City Company Sues U. S. for 8 Million

Houston, Tex., Aug. 19 (AP).—The Texas City Terminal Railway Co. today filed an eight million dollar suit against the United States Government for damages to the company's property during the Texas City disaster of last April.

The suit alleges negligence on the part of "officers, servants and employees of the Government" for mislabeling and using misleading labeling and causing loading of the boats without proper warning of the dangerous and explosive nature of the materials.

Five personal injury suits totaling $375,000 also were filed under the claims act.

Hindus and Moslems Join to Erase Riot Traces

Calcutta, India, Aug. 19 (AP).—Hindus and Moslems, seeking to strengthen their strange new friendship in India's largest city, agreed today to make good the damage done to each other's places of worship in months of bloody rioting.

Moslems and Hindus together started rebuilding the famous Hindu Shiva Temple in the predominantly Moslem area of Zakaria Street. Hindus in the Hindu suburb of Jorasankov said they would rebuild the damaged Moslem Pir Mosque.

Alarming Competition

The protest which the Motion Picture Theater Owners of Metropolitan D. C. carried to the Board of Commissioners on Monday could be ascribed most charitably, in our opinion, to the temperate weather of the preceding week. These men actually had the nerve to ask the Commissioners to stop the Recreation Board from showing motion pictures and made it plain that their "alarm" arose from fear of this sort of "competition." Their request is so utterly oblivious to the community welfare, if not to the welfare of their own business, that we can scarcely believe it emerged from the deliberations of a pleasant day or an air-cooled office.

In the first place, the city's recreation units have been showing motion pictures ever since they came into general use. By this means the Recreation Board is able to bring entertainment into the lives of thousands of youngsters who would otherwise be deprived of it. Some films have even been shown in streets and alleys under what the MPTO regards as "the most uncouth and insanitary conditions." From the nature of this protest we are led to assume, however, that the MPTO does not object to "uncouth and insanitary conditions," but only to the showing of films in such surroundings. Our own feeling is that the worse the surroundings the greater the necessity for the showing of films in the hope of diverting youngsters from delinquency and crime. Wherever it is possible, of course, the films are shown in recreation centers and schools.

One must remember, too, that the films shown are not feature pictures of the type displayed by virtually every motion-picture theater. Some are short comic films; others are educational or industrial films. Instead of running competition with the regular show houses, they doubtless whet the appetites of youngsters for the movies when and if they can obtain the price of admittance. In short, the MPTO's protest seems to be devoid of any merit, even from its own point of view. We think the Commissioners would have been fully justified in telling the complainants to go chase themselves around the District Building.

Air Policy

Recommendations of the presidential Air Coordinating Committee for a program of military aviation development unhindered by year-to-year budgetary squeezes deserves the closest consideration of our lawmakers. An adequate schedule of military aviation research and manufacture is one of the first essentials of national security. In no military sphere can we afford to rest on past developments; but this is particularly true in aviation, since planes become obsolete with astonishing rapidity. By no yardstick can our current rate of military plane production be considered ample to keep alive the industry we need. Manufacturing facilities are withering as output limps along at approximately 1700 units this year, and this is traceable in the final analysis to precisely the same sort of annual appropriations squeeze the coordinating committee seeks to avoid.

It would be of questionable legality, of course, for any one Congress to attempt to make binding appropriations commitments on succeeding Congresses. That is the hitch in trying to lay out a long-range program of contract authorization unless the entire appropriation is made at once with sanction to spend it as needed. The big job, we think, lies in the realization by individual members of Congress of the real national interest with respect to air power. Nonetheless, it should be possible to work out some procedure whereby long-range contracts, once approved, would carry at least a moral obligation for continuance, subject of course to annual review. This in itself would effect substantial economies by making possible mass production methods instead of the current individual tooling. And it would have the important corollary of strengthening and stabilizing the aircraft manufacturing industry. We hope that the congressional air policy committee, no less than the presidential air policy commission to which the recommendation has been referred, will give the means of implementing such a procedure some serious thought.

Among its many observations on civilian aspects of air policy, including the proper function of air mail subsidies and the eventual dispatch of all first-class mail by air when it is economically feasible, the Air Coordinating Committee has taken a broad and to our mind accurate view of the "chosen instrument" bill we merge all our overseas civil air operations. In a few choice words the committee makes mince-meat of Senator Brewster's perennial pet, though this had already been done by such authorities as James M. Landis. "Competition," the committee says, "offers the greatest stimulus to development by the United States of new operating techniques and equipment, and the only means of keeping from the hands of one small management group the power to interfere in policies of great national interest. From the point of view of national defense, there are no factors making necessary a step toward the so-called 'chosen instrument' at this time." That, we think, should silence Senator Brewster and his friends in Pan American Airways on this score for some time to come.

Limits Of Aggression

Exactly what constitutes aggression is the 64-dollar question that always bobs up in international discussions on security. It has been raised by Dr. Guillermo Belt, Cuba's delegate at the inter-American conference at Rio de Janeiro. Dr. Belt asks that the proposed inter-American defense treaty, which would bind all the American republics to take action against an aggressor, should envisage economic as well as military aggression. In other words, a republic which is under economic threat would be able to obtain redress from its sister republics.

Dr. Belt had particularly in mind the item in our own sugar act which would have denied Cuba the benefits of the act unless the Cubans paid up the outstanding claims of American creditors. The act narrowly survived a senatorial attack on this hangover of big stick diplomacy. The vote, indeed, was so narrow as to constitute a rebuke of the State Department for initiating the clause. In consequence, Secretary Marshall felt compelled to make a statement, issued when President Truman signed the bill, that in effect reduced the clause to a nullity. He said that the United States would make use of arbitral processes in the matter of debt collection—processes we are pledged to use in various inter-American compacts. Why, in view of this interpretation, the clause got into the original bill, is one of the mysteries that so far has not been explained. At any rate, the Cubans, who had agreed to arbitration during the debate on the sugar bill, are using this case (though without mentioning it) as the reason for their Rio plea to make economic threats actionable.

We feel that the Cubans have a point in their demand. What international insecurity is felt in the Americas is due to the practice of economic pressure on the part of a big neighbor. For instance, Paraguay, which is dependent on Argentina for access to the sea, one day last February saw a group of its immigrants diverted to settlements in Argentina. Bolivia and Uruguay, equally dependent on Argentina, have likewise felt Argentine coercion. For overthrowing the Villaroel regime, Bolivia was cut down to a starvation level on food imports from Argentina. Uruguay hears a threat from time to time that Argentina will stop the tourist business that has become Uruguay's second industry.

In all these cited cases there was a departure from the moral principles that should actuate neighborliness. The difficulty resides in formulating those principles and in relating alleged transgressions to them. What the Rio conference might do is set up an independent body of eminent men from a suitable number of different countries to which these transgressions could be referred. A report of them, to which might be added a conclusion, would doubtless aid in insuring good behavior. In case of a treaty violation, of course, recourse could be had to a court of justice, and it is to be hoped that at an early date there will be an inter-American court of justice.

Gold Rumors

Rumors emanating from London that the Treasury intends to raise its gold buying price from the present $35 per ounce to $50 are entirely unfounded. For, as Secretary of the Treasury Snyder declares, there have been "no plans and no discussions" of such a move. Although the Secretary of the Treasury has the power to change the price of gold without asking for congressional approval, the United States has assumed obligations as a member of the Monetary Fund not to engage in transactions that would upset the value of world currencies which in effect are tied to the dollar. Moreover, it simply doesn't make sense to assume that the Government would contemplate further increases in the price of gold in terms of dollars, even if it were entirely unfettered.

The only advantage of such a change in buying price would be to increase the dollar value of the gold reserves of Great Britain and other countries, thus enabling them for the time being to buy more goods from us. However, the resultant devaluation of the dollar would add to the inflationary pressure on prices, especially the prices of export goods, and the initial gains would soon be lost. Surely we have not forgotten that our dollar devaluation experiment of the thirties, effected by raising the price of gold from $20.67 to $35 per ounce, was launched in the hope of raising our domestic price level and combating depression. The effort did not succeed, but dollar depreciation did lead to advances in prices of some export commodities.

The British are complaining bitterly because the post-OPA rise in American prices has caused the purchasing power of the dollar to shrink. Although we sympathize with them, it would be an act of madness for us to try to assist them by raising the dollar price of gold, thereby adding to inflationary pressures that have already brought an alarming rise in our living costs. There is no possible excuse for embarking on such a foolhardy undertaking. It would not only create serious price maladjustments, but would impair the confidence of the American people in the soundness and stability of their own currency.

The Administration would certainly be hard put to it in trying to reconcile a policy involving a deliberate cheapening of the purchasing power of the dollar with its campaign to curb price increases. Moreover, it would be difficult to reconcile any such program with the Treasury's plans for co-operating with the World Monetary Fund in the fight against gold black markets. Only last week the Treasury held hearings on proposals to amend gold regulations by forbidding the exportation of gold recovered from imported ores except to the foreign exporter or in accordance with his order. American exporters (that is, refiners) would be forbidden to participate in the sale of such refined foreign gold or receive commissions from such sales. The Treasury also proposes to restrict licenses for exportation of domestic gold for industrial and professional uses to semi-processed gold. In other words, it plans to halt all exports of refined gold bars.

These proposals are proof of the Administration's desire to cooperate wholeheartedly with the efforts of the Monetary Fund to suppress black market dealings in gold, which constitute a threat to currency stability. Reports of gold sales in foreign countries at prices in dollars double the buying rate by the Treasury for gold do not, as is sometimes mistakenly assumed, indicate that the dollar has depreciated in value and that such depreciation should be recognized by an official increase in the dollar price of gold. These black market gold transactions are carried on in foreign currencies that have, as a matter of fact, depreciated in terms of gold. Hence, if the amounts paid in such currencies for an ounce of gold are translated into dollars at overvalued official rates, a highly inaccurate figure is obtained.

It is extremely doubtful whether our attempts to assist the Monetary Fund to maintain present currency stability will be of much effect. For the black market in gold is evidence of the fundamental instability and weakness of the currencies of many countries. Efforts at suppression of this traffic are commendable, but the ultimate remedy lies in a more realistic exchange valuation of the overvalued currencies of many members of the Monetary Fund and calls for internal reforms essential to the maintenance of sound and stable currency systems. The dollar, however, is firmly anchored to gold, and there is no rational excuse now or in the foreseeable future for tampering with or changing the price of gold in terms of dollars.

Anti-Communist Clause

It seems to us that there is good reason for the protest against Robert N. Denham's interpretation of the anti-Communist provision of the Taft-Hartley Act. Mr. Denham takes the view that a local carpenter's union would have no standing before the NLRB unless every member of the AFL executive council had filed an affidavit declaring that they were not members of and not affiliated with the Communist Party. Members of the so-called watch-dog committee set up under the Taft-Hartley Act are said to take issue with this conclusion. They see no reason for stretching the language of the law to cover the top hierarchy of the AFL and the CIO.

To be sure, the language of the act is sweeping. It prevents the NLRB from acting at the behest of a union unless there is on file with it an affidavit "by each officer of such labor organization and the officers of any national or international labor organization of which it is an affiliate or constituent unit that he is not a member of the Communist Party." Certainly this would stop a local cigar makers' union from pressing a case before the NLRB until such affidavits had been filed by the Cigar Makers International Union. The same would be true, of course, with all local and national or international unions that are directly affiliated. But we doubt that Congress intended to regard local unions as being affiliated with the AFL and CIO. The AFL has often made a special point of its inability to control local unions which support it. Instead of being a parent union that can issue orders to and prescribe rules for its local bodies, it is a federation of many unions through which the common interest of workers is promoted.

Unfortunately, this loosely worded section was not extensively debated on the floor of either house. Indeed, the language finally adopted was drafted in conference, after the major debates were over, to avoid the enactment of utterly unworkable provisions in both the original bills. However, Senator Taft did say of the section now in question: "Under the amendment an affidavit is sufficient for the board's purpose and there is no delay unless an officer of the moving union refuses to file the affidavit required." The author of the bill was obviously thinking of a union as a bargaining unit. Neither the AFL nor the CIO is a bargaining unit. It would be foolish to penalize bargaining units appearing before the NLRB because officers of nonbargaining units had not filed declarations of independence from communism. We think that the NLRB is under obligation to put the most reasonable interpretation upon the law; not the least reasonable one. The final decision must be left to the courts in any event, but meanwhile the board will put itself in a very awkward position if it adopts a more rigid definition of this provision than its authors, with the effect of making part of the act unworkable.

"I Thought You Didn't Like Price Controls"

Letters To The Editor

India's Example

On August 15 the British government formally handed over to the elected Constituent Assemblies of Hindustan and Pakistan complete sovereignty over India. This voluntary surrender of control over more than half their Empire to the people living in it does great credit to the Socialist idealism and anti-imperialist convictions of the British Labor government and of the British trade unionists who constitute the bulk of the Labor government's support. It is significant of the vigor of democratic principles in Britain that the very men who led the struggle of the Indians to win their freedom learned the ideals of democracy, in the name of which they carried on their propaganda, not from the caste system of their own land but from the British people themselves.

The comparative peacefulness of the transfer of control is also a tribute to the nonviolent character of the opposition to imperialism in India under the leadership of Gandhi. (The violence in India has been chiefly Hindu against Moslem.) The British government could not successfully transfer sovereignty to the representatives of the Indian people until they had agreed to partition India between the Hindus and the Moslems. It may well be that this holds significance for the problem of Palestine, and that partition between the Jewish and Arab inhabitants will be the only practicable solution.

It is also significant that Gandhi's nonviolent methods proved successful in convincing the British that surrender of control to the Indian people was just and right. It is probable that the violent tactics pursued by the Irgunists in Palestine are delaying, not hastening, control by the Jews of Palestine, or at least of a substantial part of it.

For the courage that the British people showed in standing alone against the Nazis for an entire year after the Nazis had conquered nearly all of Europe and had a friendly alliance with the Russian Communist government, would seem to show that it is harder to frighten the British by an appeal to force and violence, as the Irgunists are trying to do, than it is to convince them by a non-violent appeal to reason, as Gandhi successfully tried to do.

National Theater

In regard to Actors' Equity which would permit actors to refuse to appear in plays in Washington theaters where Negroes are excluded from the audiences, may I say that in my opinion, this organization is short-sighted and is working against the best interest of the actors involved. The public can do without actors, even good actors, and would be better off without the services of the bad ones of whom there seems to be legion. It is high time that actors realize that they have no power over audiences except to lose them. Actors derive their reputations by catering to audiences. Actors' threats are empty. These threats have no teeth since there is nothing that actors can do about audiences.

Persons controlling our food, clothing, shelter, heat and light are in a position to put on the screws because humanity needs these things or thinks it does. As soon as actors put on the pressure they are out of character for they are soliciting people.

I hope they will realize, before they hurt themselves too much, that the world can do without actors. We don't want to but we can. And actors cannot do without us, and remain actors.

democracy, after the next season plays performed by professional actors and actresses will no longer be presented here.

A solution of this problem would be to organize a corporation to build a truly national theater which would be open to the public regardless of race, creed or color. I realize that to build such a theater would cost at a minimum several hundred thousand dollars. But if enough people who are interested in going to the legitimate theater would get together and buy stock in such a corporation it could be done. Buying shares in such a corporation would be a sound investment in democracy.

Pepper's Part

In regard to the Catherine E. Byrns letter of August 14, I would like to say that Howard Hughes is the greatest national hero that has entered into a Senate investigation. Senator Pepper's part as a committee member was to listen and analyze any statements or facts that were given to the committee. Senator Pepper, in speaking on behalf of Mr. Hughes and the American people, as it was plainly seen that Mr. Hughes was being run over by the committee, only shows that he has shown himself as a good American in working toward a better democracy.

Esperanto For International Amity

Hats off to Mr. Isaac H. Schwartz whose letter "Speech as a Catalyst" appeared on August 14. He poses a question of the most far-reaching influence for the good of mankind. If it is settled right.

At the root of divergency in thought and action on the part of the diversified nations lies language. Mr. Schwartz is right in sensing keenly the need to foster a better tone of amicable expression in arranging contacts between language-divided countries through the agency of the power of speech. But he will wait from now until tomorrow if he counts upon philologists to help here. They absolutely fail to furnish the right kind of timber to kindle the sparks that can set aflame in the hearts of humankind the sentiments that link interfraternally with linguistic ease.

Mr. Schwartz strikes the right keynote in the happy use of the term "catalyst" in association with the efficacy of speech. This connotes an atmosphere of neutrality made to exist in sustained international effort to coordinate language and amity. Indeed the two must go together if men are to be attracted together in a lasting bond of good fellowship by a movement that primarily aims to break down difficulties of intercommunication.

For this role Esperanto, the recognized international language, artificially created for neutral adoption by all nations, is admirably fitted. It enables peoples of all countries to meet on a common neutral ground of reciprocal good feeling and capable expression of ideas by enabling them to understand and communicate with one another in a beautifully simple and easy vehicle of intercommunication.

The writer has been using Esperanto the secondary, auxiliary language for more than 40 years, making valuable contacts all over

Mountain View

A beautiful view is to be found at the Warren County fire lookout tower located on top of the Blue Ridge Mountains north of Linden, Va., about 6 1/2 miles from Route 35 at Linden. On a clear day a gorgeous view of 30 miles or more can be had. There are also other fine views along the dirt road between Linden and Paris, Va., on U. S. Route 50. There is a distance of about 13 miles between these two points. Turn right at Linden sign at a large stone building known as the Piedmont Inn.

I am lookout watchman on this tower in the fall and spring months and visitors are welcome up in the cabin with me. Visitors can get a fine view at any time they come on the tower steps. The road leads right to the tower.

Police State

Given a world in which the organization of secret political police has been so perfected that all who speak openly for freedom are killed (none too painfully!) and all who are suspected are sent to work under conditions in which their degree of slavery matches the suspicion they have aroused, I can see absolutely no way in which freedom can ever again get even a toe-hold on earth.

I would find it extremely pleasant to think freedom will always have a chance. But when I try to think just how this could possibly be the case under a totalitarian world state, I am utterly licked. Not even a ray of hope for freedom can I discover in that picture (which may be realized within a generation) of a world state whose great concern is, not the freedom and happiness of the individual, but its own perpetuation and the purging of its own endless ends of more.

Price Probes And Consumers

By Malvina Lindsay

People Who Pay

WHILE ALL the coming probes of high prices are unwinding their reels of testimony, what is the average family going to do about its shrinking dollars?

Constantly come reports of something about to go higher—meat, butter, eggs, sugar, cotton, women's dresses, men's suits, automobiles, rent. The inflation headache we thought couldn't happen here again because we had gotten too smart is throbbing with all its 1920 intensity. Grocery lists of 1920 (butter at 61 cents a pound; eggs, 64 cents a dozen; milk, 15 cents a quart) no longer seem quaint and incredible. It is no comfort even to the competitively minded that the clothing index, except for a brief period in 1920, now stands at an all-time high.

In the continual talk about high prices everyone asks, "How do people get by?" They are thinking chiefly of the 60 per cent of families who get less than $2500. Even average factory pay, as recently reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, at $48.91 a week, calls for financial wizardry to meet bills with dollars that purchase 59 per cent less than in 1939.

WHAT THEN are people doing? They are using up their E bonds. More are being cashed than are bought.

They are spending all forms of savings. The Federal Reserve Board reports savings declining more than they are increasing among families earning $1000 to $3000.

They are buying more on credit and installment. Consumer credit, now nearing 11 billion dollars, is three billion above a year ago. They are buying less, particularly apparel, thereby contributing to creeping unemployment in several fields.

They are still doubling up in houses and are beginning to limit families and postpone weddings. They are sending wives and mothers into the job market again.

They are putting more of their old people into institutions. They are applying for relief payments for their elderly, their handicapped and their unskilled members who have been crowded out of employment.

What more is there for them to do? What can they hope for out of the price investigations soon to get under way?

As consumers, they can do a few things now, say economists. They can stop careless and stupid buying, inform themselves thoroughly about values and resist poor quality goods at inflated prices. They can buy only what they urgently need and as little on credit as possible. They can do all they can to increase their individual production.

They can do their best to keep out of debt or other obligations they would have to repay in a depression with dollars that would buy far more than they do now.

AS TO the price probes, these hold no hope for present relief. What value they have in the long run for the average man's pocketbook depends largely on how the consumers of the country react to their findings.

Three congressional subcommittees will begin hearings next month in 15 cities. These will report back to the Congressional Joint Economic Committee, which will report to Congress February 1. All persons who are loudly complaining about prices have the chance to interest themselves in these hearings—quite as much as they did in the Hughes-Brewster congressional circus—by means of press, radio or even personal attendance at and participation in these events.

These hearings will not feature testimony about night clubs or party girls but will dig for information that affects everyone's daily living. Business and labor groups are preparing to present their statistics, theories and all. So, once again, many retailers are preparing to champion the public against the wholesalers. Alarmed at the state of prices, they recognize they are particularly vulnerable to the public's wrath.

How well consumers inform themselves and act on the results of these hearings may strongly influence subsequent legislation on the price structure. If American consumers even showed that their interest in prices was as great as their interest in gossip and glamour this might be a strong moral discouragement to such practices as planned scarcity and price-fixing by collusion, to profiteering and to charging all that the traffic will bear.

Restrictive Covenants

X. Y. G.'s letter of August 15 on restrictive covenants forces me to inquire publicly "why does the salient point of such covenants escape both the people who foster these festering spots on the American scene and those who decry them?"

Restrictive covenants pertaining to various white groups are almost entirely a cheap means of bolstering a flabby ego, a trick to make unthinking people believe that exclusiveness exists where actually none is present. Fourteen white people stand in a realtor's office. This is an exclusive development," he says, "so 13 of you—no matter what your character and personal habits, can come in. I'm keeping one of you out—no matter how quiet, clean, and refined you are. We're exclusive here."

Strange how many of the 13 really think they are exclusive. If we are to have restrictions, let us have some that really mean something—those based upon references and character. W. L. B. Washington.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

The Eisenhower Entry

GENERAL OF the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower has just returned to Washington from his summer vacation-inspection trip. Besides the gigantic problems of American security in a troubled world, he has found waiting for him at the Capital another problem of a more personal nature. This is the problem of the Eisenhower presidential candidacy.

Whether the general likes it or not—and he has given every indication that he dislikes it intensely—his presidential prospects now constitute a very solid problem indeed. A new phase began with the announcement that Eisenhower would become president of Columbia University in January, which at least made him technically available. Since then signs have been accumulating of another of those rather sheep-like stampedes which are customary among the rich men who back presidential hopefuls.

These denizens of the New York and other financial districts are, in most cases, rather like uninformed but enthusiastic bettors on horse races. They want to pick the winner. Each new rumor flying round the track sends them crowding to the betting windows to get their money down the right way. A great many of them would now like to get their money down on Eisenhower. The only question is whether this superb entry, generally conceded to be the equal of any other animal in the Republican sweepstakes, will run at all.

IN THE LAST analysis, the answer to this vital question depends upon two rather mysterious quantities—General Eisenhower himself and the situation in Kansas. The Eisenhower candidacy would now be full-fledged, if there were adequate foundation for the reports that the Kansas delegation has been committed to the general under the leadership of the exceedingly astute Roy Roberts of the Kansas City Star. But these reports are distinctly peeps into a future which has not yet materialized.

There is no doubt that Eisenhower sentiment is strong in Kansas, or that this strength will survive his becoming a New York resident. By the end of the war, of course, Eisenhower had been away from his native place for a long time. On his return, however, Kansas' greeting to Eisenhower was organized by Roy Roberts and other leading men. In the course of the celebrations, they saw much of him, and all were deeply impressed. This was the beginning of Roberts' preference for an Eisenhower candidacy. Since that time, moreover, the general's able brother, Milton Eisenhower, who is rumored far more ambitious for the general than the general is himself, has become a leading Kansas figure as head of the State agricultural college.

On the other hand, as of today, Kansas is emphatically not organized for Eisenhower. The most powerful of the State's professional politicians is the steel fabricator, Harry Darby, who is also Republican national committeeman. Darby is a Thomas E. Dewey man thus far, and is even expected to be one of the New York Governor's Western managers.

A CONTEST for the Senatorship is also on foot between former Gov. Andrew Schoepel and the incumbent, the aging Arthur Capper. Capper has at last begun to lose his famous acrobatic talent for keeping both ears to the ground at once. Schoepel is supported by Darby and is expected to defeat Capper. Consequently, by all the rules, Schoepel will also work with Darby in shaping the State delegation to the Republican convention.

There remains the Republican Party's 1936 nominee, former Gov. Alf M. Landon, whose trailing clouds of former glory have begun to thin out to mere wisps. Schoepel and Landon are at odds. Possibly he resents Darby's power with the State organization. Landon cannot deliver the State, yet the rumors of "Kansas for Eisenhower" seem to originate in Landon's perambulations of the East.

None the less, the rumors could begin to become realities tomorrow if Roy Roberts really decided to charge into the fray on behalf of his champion. The political leaders of both Kansas and Missouri have confidence in Mr. Roberts, and are healthily aware that they have got to live with him and his very considerable influence. Darby may be for Dewey now, but Kansas is likely to be for Eisenhower in the end if Roberts so desires. If that occurs, the threat to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey will be very grim indeed. Dewey is almost certain to have to win the Republican nomination on second-ballot switches. If Eisenhower has a solid base in Kansas, and an active organizer in Roberts, the second ballot switches are equally likely—perhaps more likely—to go to Eisenhower.

Roberts has let it be known that he will do nothing to "embarrass" his friend. The fact that he has remained passive to date is the clearest proof of the sincerity of what Eisenhower has said on the subject of his candidacy. It should also be considered as a warning by the money bettors. As to what may occur in the future, however, none can foretell, except that whatever Eisenhower does will be consistent with a character of high integrity and patriotism.

The Gallup Poll

Heart Disease Is No. 1 Killer But People Fear Cancer Most

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Although heart trouble is this country's number one killer, more Americans dread cancer than any other disease.

Almost 60 per cent of the answers in a recent Institute poll pointed to cancer as the most dreaded disease, while only five per cent named heart trouble.

This adds significance to the International Cancer Congress assembling in St. Louis September 2-7. Research workers there will exchange cancer information and bring up-to-date knowledge to delegates from war-torn countries, now about five years behind times.

A national cross section of adults was asked:

"What disease or illness would you dread having most?"

The answers:
Cancer	57%
Heart trouble	15
Infantile paralysis	5
Veneral diseases	3
Other	15
No answer, don't know	4

*Adds to 105 per cent because some people gave more than one answer.

The public's most dreaded diseases show no close relation with Bureau of Census figures on actual causes of death. The five leading causes in 1945 were: Heart diseases responsible for 424,328 deaths; cancer and other malignant tumors (177,464); strokes and cerebral hemorrhages, etc. (129,144); nephritis (88,078) and pneumonia and influenza (68,386).

Dread of cancer is equally distributed throughout the population, no breakdowns showing any startling variations. What differences there are show that women are more inclined to worry about it than men and that manual workers are least likely of the occupational groups to dread cancer.

Educational and fund-raising activities of the American Cancer Society and efforts led by Walter Winchell on behalf of the Damon Runyon Memorial Fund have served to make the public deeply conscious of the threat of cancer. The Government is now putting its power behind attacks on the scourge. Recent Congresses have considered a number of bills proposing large sums for research into the causes and control of cancer. The Institute found a year ago that 87 per cent of voters approved the Neely-Pepper bill for appropriate 100 million dollars for that purpose and that 72 per cent of voters would be willing to pay more taxes to support the program.

While none of these bills has yet become law, the last session of Congress appropriated five million dollars to the Atomic Energy Commission for cancer research. Observers believe this will be used to finance an intensified search for radio-active "tracers." The United States Public Health Service also is conducting a cancer research and control program.

Apart from cancer's painful characteristics much of the public's apprehension stems from a firm belief that all forms of it are incurable. A poll two years ago found that some 20 million people still cling to that old defeatist attitude, although the American Cancer Society states that one-fourth of all cancer cases are now being saved and estimates that about half could be saved if caught in time.

Spreading knowledge about symptoms and the need for periodic medical exams is the purpose behind the society's field army of over a million women and its information centers. Institute polls have revealed an encouraging decline in the public's ignorance about cancer as the society's educational efforts progress.

'Feeling Much Better,'

Bilbo Announces

New Orleans, Aug. 19 (AP)—Senator Theo G. Bilbo (D., Miss.) sat up in his hospital bed today and announced "I am feeling much better."

The Bilbo statement followed an early morning report that he had suffered a "weak spell."

Yesterday doctors had tied off a vein in what they described as a "minor operation" to prevent a blood clot in Bilbo's lungs from reaching his heart. Prior to the operation the hospital had considered his condition serious enough to warrant periodic bedside reports. Last night this was discontinued.

Americans In Europe

WHEN THIS appears, I shall be on my way to Europe. After an interval for travel, the column will be resumed from Germany.

Primarily I shall try to report on what Americans are doing in Europe—first in our occupation in Germany and Austria, and then with respect to relief and rehabilitation in Greece, Italy and Western Europe. The series will deal for the most part with Americans and what they are trying to do.

We talk a lot about our role in the world. Some of it is big talk from those who preach an "American century" which would apparently be a kind of benevolent imperialism. Another school is anxious to advertise the benefits of American democracy, stressing the need for us to take a constructive role in leading Europe out of the present swamp of collapse and despair.

This last is close to official State Department policy as publicly proclaimed. In its general objective it is the essence of the Marshall Plan.

But what about our capacity? Do we have the skill, the background, the knowledge to be tactful harbingers of the American way of life? Or, from the point of view of the more hard-boiled school, to be reasonable and efficient agents of an American imperialism? Even more important, do we have the perseverance, the will, the resolution to go through with a long-term undertaking?

NATURALLY the answer lies in large part here at home. Part of the story, however, is in Europe. It is in our performance there to date, and in the attitudes Europeans hold toward us.

Ours is, for the time being, the greatest economic and technical power in the world. How we use that power, or misuse it, or fail to use it, will determine the shape of things to come for a long time.

Europe is watching. We cannot afford to be deceived.

14 Coal Companies Fined $24,500 on Monopoly Charges

Boston, Aug. 19 (AP)—Fourteen coal distribution organizations were fined a total of $24,500 today in Federal District Court on charges of conspiracy to fix prices and to monopolize soft coal distribution in violation of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

Judge Arthur D. Healey allowed the defendant firms to enter pleas of nolo contendere—in which they neither admit nor deny the charge. The fines ranged from $750 for two of the firms up to $3000 for three large firms and a bureau, which is to be dissolved.

James M. Malloy, a special attorney for the antitrust division of the Department of Justice, said the defendants handled 95 per cent of the soft coal sold in greater Boston, and that they had eliminated competition among themselves.

Among the firms was the Pocahontas S. Co., Inc., of Boieshotas, Va., fined $3000.

Russians Seize Silver

Hannover, Germany, Aug. 19 (AP)—Two boxes of silver weighing more than 100 pounds and a crate of fur coats were seized by Russian frontier guards from the international train between Berlin and the British zone, passengers said when they reached Hannover six hours late today.

War of Nerves Intensifying In Greece

By M. W. Fodor

Athens, Aug. 18 (Delayed).—The war of nerves between Greece and its Communist northern neighbors reached a high point here today. As Athens sweltered in broiling heat and tried to enjoy a long weekend celebration starting with Fridays' observance of Maria's Ascension, the Communists made one move after another to cause widespread apprehension.

First, Yugoslavia ordered immediate departure of Charge d'Affaires Schmitz and Attache Tsakonovitch and the latter's wife. As they boarded a Greek commercial plane, Mme. Tsakonovitch loudly expressed joy in leaving "this monarch-fascist country which is causing trouble with its neighbors."

Mme. Tsakonovitch was so vocal that the police had to intervene by the time the plane reached Salonika.

"Free Greece" Declared

The Tass News Agency correspondent here then charged Greek police are arresting and torturing "Russian embassy personnel" and visitors to the embassy. Russia is apparently withdrawing personnel from the embassy here.

Then came apparently authentic reports that Yugoslavia is withdrawing its Fourth Army in Yugoslavia Macedonia under Gen. Jekto Dapchevitch. This general is the ablest military man in the Yugoslav army. He was a valiant fighter in Bosnia during the partition warfare and was later commander opposite Trieste.

By this time all Athens was really running a high temperature.

Then the rebel chief Gen. Markos Vafthiades, announced over his clandestine radio station that a charter had been adopted declaring leadership in "free Greece" until a new government can be set up. He declared a republic in Greece depositing King Paul; declared last year's plebiscite invalid, and proclaimed the aim of the new charter to be the liberation of Greece "from foreigners and their agents."

"Elections" Are Ordered

He further stated he was ordering elections in each town and village in "free Greece" to establish local government.

The EAM organ, Eleftheri Ellada, printed the Vafthiades statement and was promptly suppressed, although the royalist "Hestia" also printed it and was unpublished. Altogether, official Athens is on edge today and the continued absence of Deputy Premier Tsaldaris in the United States does not help matters.

Every day lost in establishing a firm government in Greece's water under the wheel of the northern enemies who are obviously proceeding with well-laid plans.

Student Veterans Urged to Hurry

Veterans planning to enter college under the GI bill this fall were urged yesterday by the Veterans Administration to make all arrangements for enrollment without delay.

Those entering college for the first time must obtain a certificate of eligibility from VA, according to G. M. Heiss, chief of the education division of the Washington regional VA office.

Veterans who enroll at the same school they have been attending do not need another certificate, but veterans who transfer must obtain a supplemental certificate. In the Washington area, veterans may make application for a certificate through the regional VA office, 1825 H E. nw., or at any suburban VA post office.

Silver Leaps 2 Cents

New York, Aug. 19 (AP)—Foreign silver advanced 2 cents an ounce to 67 1/2 cents; New York today, increases since early last week have totaled 5 1/2 cents an ounce. The London price was unchanged today at 40 pence.

18 Generals Reshuffled In Air Forces

By the United Press

The Army Air Forces yesterday announced a farflung reshuffling in domestic and overseas assignments for 18 generals.

The AAF gave no reason for the move, but it was believed to be connected with creation of an autonomous air force under the department forces unification plan. War Department sources said the overseas assignments had been cleared by the State Department.

The officers and their new posts: Brig. Gen. John F. McBlain to succeed Maj. Gen. Idwal H. Edwards as commander of the United States Air Forces in Europe. Edwards will return here for reassignment.

Maj. Gen. William E. Hall, formerly a member of the Chief of Staff's advisory group, assigned to Europe for duty with the Office of Military Government for Germany. Sean Returns Here

Maj. Gen. Lucas Victor Beau, Jr., now with the AAF's European air transport service, returns here for reassignment, as does Brig. Gen. William F. McKee, former commanding general of headquarters command with the United States Air Forces in Europe.

Brig. Gen. Edward J. Timberlake, named chief of the operations division in the office of assistant chief of air staff for operations at AAF headquarters.

Brig. Gen. Ernest Moore, appointed to replace Brig. Gen. Charles P. Cabell on the United Nations military staff committee. Cabell returns for reassignment.

Brig. Gen. John P. McConnell, assigned to head the Reserve and National Guard Division of the assistant chief of air staff for operations office at AAF headquarters. He formerly was chief of the air division of the American advisory group in China.

Douglas to San Antonio

Maj. Gen. Robert W. Douglas, Jr., appointed commanding general of the air training command's indoctrination division at San Antonio, Texas. He formerly commanded the First Air Force and served under the joint chiefs of staff after returning from the Pacific.

Brig. Gen. Aubrey Lee Moore, who formerly served in Europe, named commanding general of Williams Field, Ariz.

Brig. Gen. Carl B. McDaniel, former chief of staff of the Seventh Air Force at Hawaii, named commanding general of the aerial-observer-bombardier school at Matheson Field, Calif.

Brig. Gen. Donald F. Stace, former commander of the Seventh Air Force, named chief of the procurement and industrial planning division in the office of assistant chief of air staff for material at AAF headquarters.

Board of Welfare Eliminates 391 in Client Screening

The Board of Public Welfare announced yesterday that 391 of its 5800 clients have been dropped or suspended during a four-day screening of the first half of its total number of cases.

The screening was started last Thursday in an economy move to eliminate a percentage of those receiving assistance by tightening relief requirements. The board decided to cut down in this manner, rather than reduce the amount of all its relief checks.

By 4 p. m. yesterday, social workers from the Public Assistance Division had screened 2784 of the 5800 cases. The 391 clients already chosen to be dropped or suspended, included a large number who will be investigated further, a spokesman said.

statement today that William Farley, president of the Association of American Railroads, believes that American Railroads, believes that "competition is a bad principle in the railroad business."

Faricy said last week that "freight train speed was—the remedy for the car shortage proposed by Young—would shrink rather than expand the total car supply."

Young's statement today said:

"William Farley, president of the AAR, has replied to our latest public service advertisement in which we offered a constructive solution to the present box car shortage at a time when there is a bumper crop which must be moved to market. This reply says in plain effect that competition is a bad principle in the railroad business.

"Mr. Farley argues that if the roads did not practice deliberate freight slow-downs so that each road has the same schedule they might have to run shorter trains and more of them. What of it? No road would have to do this

PAPA JARRIN GOES HONEY-MOONING

After 40 years of happy marriage, the doyen of Washington chefs, silver-topped "Papa" Jarrin of the Wardman Park Hotel, and his Mrs. ("Mama") Jarrin are going on a second honeymoon. To make it perfect they're going to honeymoon in Venezuela, where they honeymooned in 1907 when all the world was young and gay. Next week the Jarrins will leave La Guardia Field for Venezuela, return in about six weeks. Happy marriages are rife at Wardman. Carl Zarick, assistant major domo in the Metropole Room, all elated, is passing out cigars in his role of the delighted father of a tiny and pink young lady named Pamela Page Zarick.

Uproar Over Gen. Lee No Surprise to Ex-GI's

(Editor's Note—While Drew Pearson is on vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

By Robert S. Allen

To European veterans, the current uproar over pomp-loving Lieut. Gen. John (God Almighty) Lee is no surprise. It long has been a mystery to them how he has escaped public notice. Three of the most notorious supply episodes of the war occurred under Lee as chief of supply of the European Theater.

One was the infamous "cigarette scandal." For weeks, practically no cigarettes reached the fighting troops. Subsequent investigation revealed that the shortage was due to two causes: Huge pilfering and black marketing by supply personnel in the rear echelon, and the failure of Lee's organization to move to the front great quantities of cigarettes lying in Normandy dumps.

Another incident was the breakdown in the delivery of 1944 Christmas mail to the troops. Under Government urging to mail early, over 125,000 sacks of mail piled up in Cherbourg awaiting distribution. Additional thousands of sacks were in the U. K. General Bradley vigorously urged Lee to get the mail moving. At that time there were plenty of transport planes and trucks available. But the mail didn't move.

A MIDNIGHT CYNIC, speaking of the light fixtures in one of the city's biggest cocktail lounges, said, "They look like gigantic plumbiers' wrenches that might be used to unscrew the light bulbs." He went on, "I wish to the Lord that Spike Jones would do that 'Whiffenpoof' thing and kill it off. Those self-conscious black sheep upset my stomach twice a night."

Margaret Truman Bans All But Practice

Hollywood, Aug. 19 (U.P.)—Margaret Truman banned social activities today, so she could "rehearse and rehearse" for her first public concert appearance as a singer Saturday night at Hollywood Bowl.

"I must be good," Miss Truman said. "Being the President's daughter puts me in a neat spot. On the other hand, it has its advantages. Asked what her piano-playing father, President Harry S. Truman, thought about her singing, Miss Truman smiled:

"I don't know. He says he likes to hear me sing. At least he doesn't object to it."

Frankfurter on Vacation

Chunky little Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter is noted in the Capital for his garrulity. On and off the bench, he talks incessantly. Being on vacation, apparently, has no effect on him. He's still talking.

The other evening Frankfurter talked lengthily to a group of local postmasters at Charlemont in the Berkshire Hills of western Massachusetts, where he is summering. On the whole, it was not an entirely auspicious occasion.

Frankfurter had barely seated himself when one of the waiters, an inexperienced college student hired for the evening, spilled a bowl of soup down Frankfurter's neck. The august justice graciously made light of the accident.

"Oh, well," he said, "at least we'll now be able to tell whether this is good soup. I've found that if soup is good, the spots will come out of your clothing quite easily. But if the soup isn't good, it's a job for the cleaners."

After an effusive introduction by James P. McAndrews, head of the Western Massachusetts Postmasters' Association, Frankfurter told his listeners that while times were dark there was still hope.

"We must not forget that we are living in one of the most hopeful eras in the history of this country," he orated. "Fear is the worst of all counselors. This is a great democracy. If we use the material and human resources which we have, and which we have shown we can use, we have no foreign country nor ideology to fear."

Frankfurter also took a sly dig at the recent hoopla Brewster-Ferguson investigation.

Referring to an editorial in the Pittsburgh (Independent Republican) Evening Eagle caustically assailing the probe, he said, "My wife thought the editorial was just about perfect. She felt it covered the subject completely and that nothing more need be said on the subject."

After numerous other observations, Frankfurter finally concluded with this pertinent remark: "On the way over here, Mrs. Frankfurter told me I really ought to keep my mouth shut because she knew once I got started, I'd talk my head off."

Rejuvenated Joe

Word has reached Washington that Josef Stalin has regained his health and is again in fine fettle. Source of the information is Jan Masaryk, able Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia and son of the "founding father" of the indomitable little republic. Masaryk's report was received through diplomatic channels.

He spent several weeks in Moscow negotiating a new trade agree-

1947 Audience Enthusiastic Over 'The Red Mill' Revival

Mr. Brady, an instructor in the Speech and Drama Department at Catholic University, has been a frequent contributor to The Washington Post's theater page. He will handle theater reviews while Richard L. Coe is on vacation.

From Yesterday's Late Editions

By Leo Brady

Victor Herbert's "The Red Mill" came back to the National last night for a two-week revival. Like an old song sheet of the Herbert music, it is a trifle faded, the color is a little thick in places and the cupids in the corner look ill, but the score is inside—as balmy and melodious as ever. Last night's audience showed just as much enthusiasm as though this were 1906 and "Of Thee I Sing" and "Oklahoma!" had never happened to musical comedy.

For the music is still largely the thing in "The Red Mill," although the next best thing is the horse-play. In fact, last night the comedy was running a close second to the nostalgic songs. Jack Whiting and Buster West, indeed, do far more to carry on the tradition of Montgomery and Stone (whom they succeed by 41 years) than the singing principals do to carry off the tunes.

It's doubtful whether the audience would have been willing to settle for "Because You're Young," "In Old New York" and the other famous tunes, without the comical popping up here and there among the orchestrations.

Click Like Billiard Balls. West and Whiting come together from different avenues of show business and click like a couple of billiard balls. Heretofore West has been a dancer fairly exclusively, and Whiting has been white-tie-and-tailed in the more sophisticated Broadway musicals. But in "The Red Mill" they step into the over-size shoes of Clark and McCullough and the Marx Brothers.

They crack loud, they fall down, they gesticulate, they grimace—and look out slyly at the house now and again to make sure you know they're kidding. On the way, they face-lift a lot of gags that couldn't have been too funny even in 1906. When they're on stage "The Red Mill" is worth looking at and laughing at, and even though they are often knee-deep in corn, it is not alien to them—nor to their audience, after awhile.

The Unseen Audience

IT'S A NEW Deanna Durbin, they say, who will be seen in the Universal-International film, "Something in the Wind." To which we can but lamely reply, the old Deanna was sure sweet

Looking at Hollywood

Stevens' Next to Be 'The Wayward Bus'

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 19.—Maria Montez is set for "Queen Hearts," a comedy taken from the European play, "Cousin From Warsaw." The setting will be changed from Warsaw to Santa Barbara, Calif. Seymour Nebenzal and Charlie Rogers will produce it; the former had the story, the latter the Technicolor commitment. They hope to get Maria back from England and onto the sound stage by the end of October. George Stevens' next picture will be "The Wayward Bus," with, he hopes, Barbara Bel Geddes. "One Big Happy Family," which George was to have done, has been discarded because its theme is no longer timely. The story hinged on civilians understanding G. I.'s, now G. I.'s are trying desperately to understand civilians.

J. Richard Kennedy, writing the script for "Freedom From Fear," returned to town after spending five days with Eleanor Roosevelt talking over incidents from her late husband's life that will go into the film. I talked with Jimmy Roosevelt the other day and said I'd heard brother Elliott would act in it. Said he, "Elliott, an actor?" "Well, hasn't he always been?" said I. Jimmy came back with "Remember you said that—not I."

Arthur Freed knows nothing about Ann Miller being in Irving Berlin's "Easter Parade," but says Gene Kelly will be, also Gene Kelly, Judy Garland and Peter Lawford. He tells me that Irving's one of the many who are getting the ax in the current crisis.

Won't Be Fenced In

Jane Russell tells me if corsets come back as threatened, she'll let the bulges bulge. She and Bob Waterfield are building a new house. He's training for fall football, so they see each other two hours a month. She has done a record album, and says her future picture plans depend upon Howard Hughes, who still has her under contract.

Susan Pefer's Christmas cards will be cardboard recordings of the song, "I'll Never Say I Love You to Any One but You," which she sings in "The Sign of the Cross." Walt Disney wants Harold "Over the Rainbow" Arlen to write the songs for "Alice in Wonderland." Nina Foch never got a good part here at Columbia. But she's knocking 'em cold in the New York play "John Loves Mary" with her American Revolutionary style hair-do, now being used by Betty Grable and half a dozen stars. When Nina returns in January, Columbia will undoubtedly find a part worthy of her, we hope. Gregory Peck and Glenn Ford will narrate a short about the perils of atomic warfare. It will be in color, and titled "Why Do We Hide?"

Dale Evans has a fifth song she'll record—"Your Hat Cost More Than Mine." Douglas Sirk directs two more pictures: the first, Hoagy Carmichael's story, "Stardust Trail," second, "Sorrell and Son." The Legion of Decency ban on J. Arthur Rank's picture, "Black Narcissus," has resulted in packed theaters.

Atlantic City Race Trac, N. J., Aug. 19 (AP).—Nowadays, owned by Joe Tucci of Washington, D. C., had little trouble annexing the Carpet Club Purse, fifth and best race on the card here today.

Nowadays, a candidate for the $10,000 added Camden Handicap opening day attraction at Garden State Park, hit the wire three lengths before Mrs. W. W. Vaughan's Lanast, who chased the elusive Jean Valjean gelding throughout the 6 furlongs. Samuel H. Rogers' Ginargie took down third honors in a nose decision over S. W. Labrot, Jr.'s Shako.

Nowadays, winner of his last race here, was the public choice of the 15,500 fans. He paid $6 straight. Jockey Bobby Martin sent him to the front in the first quarter mile. The 6 furlongs was negotiated in the good time of 1:11.3-5 over a track which was drying out and termed "good."

Nowadays drifted out at head of the stretch and Lanast closed the gap slightly. When Martin straightened Nowadays out for the stretch run it was all over but the shouting of the favorite players as the gelding opened a three-length lead from the eighth pole to the wire. Shako came through on the rail all the way and just missed snaring the show award from the weary Ginargie.

Firemen Eliminate Costello Post, 3 to 1

Merrick, FBI Play Today On Ellipse

The Fire Department edged Costello Post, 3-1, yesterday on the South Ellipse to drop the losers out of the City Series.

By winning, the Firemen kept alive their chances. Their record now is two victories and one defeat, while Costello has won one and lost two.

A pair of Fire Department hurlers limited the losers to 5 hits, while the Firemen were collecting eight safeties off Billy Carroll of Costello.

The Smoke Eaters scored first in the third inning when Dick Farr got on base on a fielders choice, went to second on a passed ball, and came in when Eddie Moyle, Costello's first baseman, muffed Bernie Cady's grounder.

In the seventh frame the Firemen collected two more tallies to sew up the game. Singles by Hal Krug, Bill Vaughn and Dick Farr combined with an error by the catcher, Eddie Lloyd, gave the winners their run.

Costello rallied in the ninth inning, but Harry Ingram, who relieved Ernie Boggs in the sixth, put out the fire after Bud King's single had driven across Costello's lone run.

Boggs, who held the losers to a pair of hits over the first six frames, received credit for the victory.

Double Duty Wins Feature

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 19.—The Duncan R. Sloan Memorial, six and half furlong feature of the Cumberland Fair Association's opening program, pleased most of the crowd of 5000 when E. A. Nicodemus' favored Double Duty breezed home in 1:25 4/5 to pay $4.40.

Sammy Palumbo brought the mare from off the pace to score by six lengths over Mrs. L. O. Rogers' How Happy. J. K. Wynkoop's Louray O'Neill, who set the pace and who was coupled with the winner in the wagering, finished third.

Favorite players opened the meeting with an easy score when Mrs. R. H. Clemson's Maryland Morn led every step of a five-eighths opener to pay $5.60. Mrs. Schorsch's Gray Judge and G. C. Reid's Little Jaybo split up the rest of the money.

V. Leydecker's Teddy Smart, paying $12.20, was a driving winner of the six and one-half furlongs of the second. A. B. Gallion's Security G was up in time to whip the Cedar Hill Farm's Bugler, early pacesetter, for the place.

Regatta Heads Confer Today

General Chairman James A. Councillor, jr., yesterday announced the order of events for the rowing and canoe races in the President's Cup Regatta scheduled along the Key Bridge course Sunday afternoon, September 7.

Single sculls, double sculls, four-oared gig, quad sculls and eight-oared shell comprise the rowing races.

The one-man single blade, tandem double, quad single, one-man double, tandem single, quad double and tilt are the canoe events.

Canoe races will be over a half-mile straightaway in the upper river from the Three Sisters to a line just above the old piers in front of Dempsey's, while the rowers compete on the upper course of the Potomac, finishing in front of the Potomac Boat Club.

At today's meeting of regatta committeemen, 12:30, in the Cabinet Room of the Willard Hotel, will be expedited for the grand opening with the swimming meet at East Potomac Pool, September 6; the canoeing and rowing the next day, the sailing events, September 13-14, and the powerboat races also following weekend.

The membership drive also will be discussed.

Hamilton Leaves Tonight To Set Up Navy Grid Camp

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 19 (AP).—Navy football director Tom Hamilton and the Middles' sports drum-beater, Jerry Flynn, take off from Washington tomorrow night for the West Coast to do the spadework necessary to set up a fall training camp near Seattle and the opening game with California, September 27.

First stop is San Francisco. Hamilton leaves there Friday for Seattle but Flynn remains for a week of pre-game arrangements.

Hamilton expects to arrive at Highbey Island, 80 miles north of Seattle, next week and be joined by the balance of Navy's coaching staff, trainers, equipment handlers—and even four academy professors who will supply some classroom training along with the grid workout.

The academy's school year will have started before the squad returns from the coast.

The Navy coach, who was upped to "director" of football last winter, promised a busy four

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Klutz

PHR: A major reorganization of the Public Housing Authority by sharp budget cuts and a stringent order on salaries has taken Public Housing Authority to its very foundation.

About 1400 employees of the country are being fired and several hundred others are being demoted and their salaries slashed. These are among the top staff here who are leaving the organization.

G. Russell Cravens, assistant commissioner for real estate and inspection.

William F. Seaver, assistant commissioner for development and reclamation.

H. Lyle Campbell, director of construction division.

Gilbert Rodier, director of the technical development division.

Herman Grunewald, director of the technical development division.

George Wolfe, director of the technical development division.

Philip Mayer will leave his post as deputy assistant commissioner for real estate and disposition, but may be transferred to the personnel division. The job of director of projects and review is being abolished, but J. B. Corridon, slated for transfer to the construction division.

John Egan is to be appointed assistant commissioner for program operations, a new post which is to include his duties and the work of other assistant commissioners.

Before Congress in the house of representatives, the agency had 3400 administrative employees, of whom 5 per cent, or about 1100, were paid $4500 or more annually. The agency is now down to 2000 employees and only 400 of them can be paid $4500 or more.

A rider to its appropriation act limited the number of employees who could be paid $4500 or more to 30 per cent of the staff. It has forced many career people to take pay and three grade demotions.

PHR: The District Sentinel, publication of the American Federation of Government Employees (AFGE), has this story in its current issue.

On the bulletin board of a Government machine shop was this article:

"GIRLS: If your sweater is too large for you, look out for the machine. If you are too large for your sweater, look out for the machine."

BLN NEWS: About 65 of its employees here have been ordered to leave the regional office in New York City. The transfer was forced by a budget cut on salaries the Bureau of Labor Statistics can pay employees in this city.

BLN: The left-wing United Public Workers (CIO) will hold an executive board meeting this weekend in Chicago. You can expect the union to blast the Federal loyalty program and the registration and identification of all employees are required to be out under it.

STATE: This department has had all necessary lay-offs here under its smaller budget. Actually, 247 employees were fired, but more than 500 jobs were wiped out. Resignations and retirements took care of the remainder.

IN making reductions, State fired out as many "generals" as it did privates. The record shows that 8 employees who were paid $3400 or more were fired, and 132 were off in the lower grades.

VA: Raymond J. Abbatichio is a member of the efficiency rating appeals board at Veterans Administration. His alternate is: George W. Boynton.

FRANK M. Wrenn.

JOBS: Interior's Bureau of Reclamation is hiring for work on Missouri Basin project. Needed are: soil scientists, agricultural economists, electrical and civil engineers and draftsmen. Interested persons should send their Form 1 to Box 2130, Billings, Mont.

The Navy is looking for a former naval combat information center officer to edit a technical magazine. Applicants must have at least 5 years of writing experience and operational experience in a CIC. Apply at Room 1210, Navy Building.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMS: That is for telephone operator is open. Also, exam for oceanographer, $3395 to $3975, for openers in Navy and the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

AGRICULTURE: Employees retired include: Edward R. Ernest Back, Hattie Borch, Harry Bryan, William Borch, Ralph Caird, Ambrose Campbell, Mary Cashman, Clarence Dechant, William Drogan, Ferrell, George Fleming, Frank Frank, Bertha Gerlecke, Helen Gordon.

Laws of 47 States Read For Barrier To Sex Crime

District's Code Found Inadequate To Halt Offenses Against Children

The laws of 47 States are being combed in an effort to devise a statute for the District of Columbia which would create a greater barrier to sex offenses against children.

This was announced yesterday by George Morris Fay, United States Attorney for the District. Assistant United States Attorney Sidney Sachs is engaged in studying laws of the 47 States, Fay said, in order to cull the best features of each one.

"When I first took office I noticed difficulties in handling complaints of sex offenses against children," Fay said. "I intend to draft some statute for submission to Congress which would give us better tools as far as such cases are concerned," he declared.

Fay said at present those guilty of sex offenses against children can be charged only with sodomy, maximum penalty five years; simple assault, maximum penalty one year, or contributing to the delinquency of a minor, maximum penalty one year.

Fay said in some States penalties up to 20 years in prison await those committing sex offenses against children.

A general perversion act, he said, would give the authorities some means of coping with sex crimes, particularly those endangering children.

Student Faces Trial on Nine Auto Charges

Charles T. Foster, 29, of 438 D st. ne. was released in $500 bond yesterday for a Municipal Court jury trial September 4 on nine charges of traffic violations.

Pvt. H. L. Thompson of the traffic division said Foster on July 30 ran into Father Robert Humphries, a priest visiting here from Cambridge, Mass., knocking him down and causing slight injuries.

Following that accident, which happened at 7th st. and Constitution ave. nw., Foster was charged with failure to report the accident, driving on "dead" tags, driving without a permit, and failing to yield the right-of-way to a pedestrian.

Howard U. Student

The next day Foster, a student at Howard University, collided with a taxi owned by John Smallwood of Hillside, Md., and was charged with leaving after a collision. Thompson told Judge Nadine Gallagher.

Soon after that, Foster applied at the Motor Vehicle Bureau for a driver's permit. At that time, police said, he told the bureau he had never had a permit before, when in reality he had been suspended last April. Unknowningly, he was given a new one.

Leads to New Charge

This led to a charge of getting a driver's permit through misrepresentation.

Meanwhile, he had been ordered to turn in his suspended permit. Back to the Motor Vehicle Bureau he went, and gave up his suspended permit—but kept the new one, police said.

For that police charged him with failure to turn in a valid permit.

And finally, on Monday arrested Foster after charging him with driving August 11 after revocation of permit.

149,411 Beat Gun On Car Inspection Fee Raise in D. C.

Almost 150,000 automobile owners in the District of Columbia saved 50 cents because they registered their cars before August 15.

On that day, the fee for automobile inspection, which is paid at the time of registration, rose from 50 cents to one dollar. Up until the closing business hours of August 14 there were 149,411 registrations.

Authorization for the raise in the fee was granted in the 1948 District Appropriations Act.

Hog Tied . . . And How . . .

1 OINK, OINK—A 275-pound "blue" boar, which didn't go to market, but fell from a truck passing through Washington, ponders its fate in a paddy wagon as a noose is slipped around its neck. It was captured yesterday about 9 a. m., by a seven-man police motorcycle patrol and cops in two scout cars at 13th and D sts. sw. after a 10-minute chase.

2 AS STUBBORN AS A MULE, the hog refuses to be transferred from the police patrol to a light delivery truck. was first carried to the District Pound, where it was turned down by officials who said the pound was a refuge for cats and dogs, not pigs. St. Elizabeth's Hospital and the Home for the Aged at Blue Plains wouldn't take the porker either.

3 TO THE BITTER END—Hog-tied and the roundup over, the boar is prepared for delivery to Police Pvt. A. K. Bowen, of the traffic division, who will keep it on his Bladensburg, Md., farm for 30 days. If the captive isn't claimed by its owner, it'll be put up at public auction.

Two Communities Join Hands To Aid Girl Hit by Propeller

Two communities joined forces last night to provide continued medical care to a 13-year-old Gaithersburg, Md., farm girl whose face was smashed in by a whirling propeller blade.

The victim, Martha Jane Repass, daughter of a tenant farmer, was reported still unconscious and in critical condition at Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, Md., from last Thursday's accident. She requires constant nursing care which her father says he cannot afford.

Fire Chief Charles T. Fox of the Gaithersburg-Washington Grove volunteer fire department, said last night his men would canvass Gaithersburg and Washington Grove for cash contributions to-night. In the interim, he said, a fund of $60 already collected had been sent to the hospital.

Martha suffered multiple skull fractures and loss of an eye when she reportedly ran into the whirling blade of a Piper Cub airplane that had landed on the farm to take her for a ride.

Fire Chief Fox said the contributions campaign was started by Norman McGaha, Gaithersburg insurance agent, after reports that special nurses attending her might withdraw unless payment were guaranteed.

Arthur B. Solon, hospital superintendent, said he knew of no basis to the reports. He admitted, however, that if the nurses did withdraw the hospital did not have personnel to provide the needed care.

County Unit Ends Tax on Furnishings

Personal Property Levy Is Abolished in Prince Georges; Too Many Escape It

The personal property tax on household furnishings was abolished yesterday by the Prince Georges County Commissioners, meeting in Upper Marlboro, Md. Abolition of the $1.59 per $100 tax, was urged by Supervisor of Assessments Louis W. Kutsch. He said it is inequitable in practice because many new residents escape it for as much as five years. The valuation of furniture is a haphazard matter anyhow, he declared.

He pointed out that the $32,000 collected last year on the tax would be made up by more rigid collection of the tax on business stock in trade. The State of Maryland and Montgomery County have abolished this form of tax within the last year.

The commissioners adopted the 5-day work week, now in effect in State and Montgomery County offices. The courthouse at Upper Marlboro and the County Service building in Hyattsville will be closed on Saturdays the year around. Employees will work until 4:30 daily, instead of 4 p. m. as before in order to put in the same number of working hours.

They also ordered that damages of about $400 from dog tax funds be paid the University of Maryland for the 85 turkeys killed and seven injured by dogs two weeks ago. The turkeys were developed to fit the modern apartment house oven.

A delegation from Oxon Hill District urged construction of a new bridge over the Kirby branch on Kirby Hill rd. between Indian Head rd. and Fort Foote rd., at a cost of approximately $12,000. They opposed spending $1500 to repair the old bridge, which was termed "inadequate" for the flow of water. The board ordered County Engineer Arthur W. Taiman to prepare plans and advertise for bids on the new bridge. Members of the delegation were Harold Gibbons, Adrian Fisher, George H. Talbert, Jr., Arthur S. Bovey, C. A. Phelps, Jr., and C. A. Phelps, Jr.

This man, later identified as Thomas, stepped out of the delicatessen to find escape blocked at every turn by grim-faced neighbors. He got almost a block away, however, before some 15 men entered him in the alley.

Police said Thomas had $53.45 in his pocket. They said that much was missing from Laker's cash register. An dthat Brown still had the letter opener on his person when picked up.

In less public but more profitable activity, a light-stepping prowler reminiscent of the "Pants" Robber of three years ago stole $800 from the trousers of a local dentist, 610 from a woman's pocketbook, and $31 from a woman's pocketbook. The victims were all asleep in their homes at the time.

Dr. Richard A. Hightower, the dentist, of 946 T st. nw., said he awoke to find his trousers on the livingroom floor and his $800 missing. Emilio Salvatore, of 610 Morris pl. nw., told police he missed $10 when he awoke, and Virginia Sterns, of the same address, said the night visitor had taken $31.

Dr. Floyd W. Reeves of the University of Chicago, reporting for the Commission on Educational Reconstruction, recommended Federal help to boost teacher salaries and repair schools. The commission proposed aid for all children without regard for race or color.

The minority opposition came from John T. Childs of Teachers College, Columbia University, who reported himself "in fundamental disagreement with a secretary spokesman" who, he said, preferred the parochial to the public school.

A few minutes later, rain pelted the dry streets of Peoria.

Families in Hyatt Mansion, 2d Unsafe Home, Ordered Out

Evacuation of families living in two historic Hyattsville homes condemned as unsafe has been ordered by the Hyattsville, Md., City Council.

Approximately 30 persons who live in the old Hyatt mansion on Rhode Island ave. and one family in the Octagon House which is near Rhode Island ave. must leave within 15 days. E. W. Baker, city clerk, said that owners of the properties have agreed to move.

A movement has been started to restore the Hyatt mansion, after the first owner of which the city is named, as an historic monument.

In other council actions, a public hearing September 2 was ordered to discuss paving of 29th st. The council also has adopted a resolution urging that the West Hyattsville Post Office be raised to the status of a branch office.

Action by the council on appeals by a group of residents from the 39th and Hamilton sts. area seeking storm drainage facilities was delayed pending presentation of a petition by the citizens to the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission for relief.

Grocer Corralled Suspect With Neighbors' Aid

Drawn by Screams, 15 Block Escape; Accomplice Caught

An aroused neighborhood, summoned by the lusty lungs of an aggrieved grocer, yesterday corralled a bandit suspect in an alley to the rear of 600 Upshur st. nw.

Police arrested the suspect, to his obvious relief, and picked up his accomplice within another five minutes. They were identified as Elmer L. Thomas, 25, of no fixed address, and Frank Ralph Brown, 27, of 1333 Kenyon st. nw.

The neighborhood uproar began at 4:20 p. m. just after two men entered the Petworth Delicatessen at 700 Upshur st. nw. Proprietor Louis Laker, 51, who also lives there, fled screaming, with the man identified as Brown in pursuit and brandishing a letter opener.

Laker screamed even louder when he realized he was no longer being chased, and remembered there was another man back in his store.

This man, later identified as Thomas, stepped out of the delicatessen to find escape blocked at every turn by grim-faced neighbors. He got almost a block away, however, before some 15 men entered him in the alley.

Police said Thomas had $53.45 in his pocket. They said that much was missing from Laker's cash register. An dthat Brown still had the letter opener on his person when picked up.

Emilio Salvatore, of 610 Morris pl. nw., told police he missed $10 when he awoke, and Virginia Sterns, of the same address, said the night visitor had taken $31.

Dr. Floyd W. Reeves of the University of Chicago, reporting for the Commission on Educational Reconstruction, recommended Federal help to boost teacher salaries and repair schools. The commission proposed aid for all children without regard for race or color.

The minority opposition came from John T. Childs of Teachers College, Columbia University, who reported himself "in fundamental disagreement with a secretary spokesman" who, he said, preferred the parochial to the public school.

A few minutes later, rain pelted the dry streets of Peoria.

Many Pupils Give False Addresses, Official Says

District Schools Facing Difficulty in Winnowing Of Nonresidents

Acting Superintendent of Schools Norman J. Nelson said yesterday that an appreciable number of out-of-town students have been attending District schools by giving false local addresses.

The task of screening out these students will be greatly increased this year by the ruling of Corporation Counsel Vernon West that all nonresident students will have to pay tuition fees unless enrolled before July 25, Nelson said.

West's ruling was based on the 1948 District Appropriations Act which prohibits expenditure of school funds on pupils living outside the District.

Previously parents employed by the District or Federal Government or in the armed forces were permitted to send their children to District schools without paying tuition. These parents now will have to pay or enroll their children in areas in which they maintain a residence.

Nelson indicated that school officials expect many more parents will now list Washington addresses to send their children here without payment. To do so, he said, will be to defraud the District government.

D. C. Could Sue

West said that the District has two courses of action against parents violating the law. Listing a false address could be ruled as misrepresentation for gain and constitute false pretenses. As an alternative the District could sue the parent for the tuition, West said.

The corporation counsel said that not in his recollection has any legal action been taken against a parent who listed a false address to send his child to a Washington school.

In past year when violations have been discovered school officials have asked parents to pay for tuition or enroll their children in the area in which they live.

School Board Rules Group Rejects Probe

A rule that would have prevented members of the Board of Education from introducing new business at board meetings without prior committee approval was rejected yesterday.

The rules committee turned thumbs down on a proposal of C. Melvin Sharpe that all new business must be acted upon by committees before it could be brought before the full board.

At past board meetings Sharpe has been critical of fellow board member Adelbert W. Lee for bringing into open meeting allegations that text books and other materials used in the schools contain unAmerican teachings.

Sharpe said Lee first should have brought the matter to the attention of the superintendent of schools or other board members. The Sharpe resolution would have required that "all matters relating to the management, betterment or general over-all operation of the public schools" first be presented at a committee meeting and then referred to a standing committee before a full board meeting. Only "instant or emergency" matters were to be exempted.

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, board president, and George E. C. Hayes, rules committee chairman, opposed the motion as too restrictive. Lee, a member of the committee, concurred.

Not present to defend his motion. He is not a member of the rules committee.

The resolution was brought before the committee as it met to discuss revisions of board rules governing appointment, reinstatement, resignation and retirement of school employees. No action was suggested on changes in wording of the rules.

Daughter Raped, Father Charges In Damage Suit

A District father yesterday filed suit for $10,000 damages in behalf of himself and his minor daughter whom he claimed had been raped and seduced by the defendant.

The suit was filed by Attorney N. Meyer Baker for Cecil W. Spencer, 318 11th st. sw., acting in behalf of his 17-year-old daughter, Martha.

Named defendant in the suit is Fleet S. Hughlett, Jr., 22, 7800 Morningside dr. nw., son of a former Detective Bureau sergeant.

Who is now an official in the claims department of Capital Transit Co. The suit alleges that Miss Spencer was seduced and raped June 13 in Rock Creek park where she had been driving with Hughlett.

Criminal charges against the youth in the case had been ignored by a District grand jury several weeks ago.

Farm Wins Two Awards
In W. Va. Fair Judging

Lewisburg, W. Va., Aug. 19 (AP)—C. A. Smith of Hillcrest Farms, Chester, W. Va., captured both main events today at thoroughbred Hereford cattle judging at the West Virginia State Fair.

Smith's H. C. Marry Domino 12th, took the grand champion bull award, while his H. C. Marry Domino 30th was adjudged the reserve champion bull.

Hillcrest also took two first places in the cattle judging: Morlunda Farms of Lewisburg won two first prizes, and Birdwood Farms of Charlottesville, Va., received one top award.

The judge, Alexander Edgar of the University of Illinois, commented that "you truly have some great cattle."

Glenmont Farm of Marshall, Va., dominated the Hampshire sheep judging with both the winning ram and winning ewe. In addition, Glenmont also took five other first ribbons, sharing this honor with E. H. Williams Sons of Marlinton, W. Va., who also received five blue ribbons.

Traffic Check to Begin

Winchester, Va., Aug. 19 (AP)—

M. Wilkinson, of the traffic and planning division of the State highway department, said today that he would begin a traffic survey of conditions here by Monday.

The city council approved the payment of not more than $2000 for such a survey at its last meeting.

According to Wilkinson, the survey will include a check of all parking spaces, turns at busy intersections and a perimeter check to ascertain the origin and destination of all trips into and out of the city.

Salesmen Sue Firm

Richmond, Va., Aug. 19 (AP)—

Three salesmen of a Fredericksburg shoe company have filed complaints in Federal District Court here alleging that the company withheld from them more than $60,000 in commissions.

"War conditions" and the sporadic delivery of rationed shoes made it possible for the Virginia Shoe Co. Inc., to conceal sales on which they were due to receive commissions of from 6 to 8 percent, the complainants claim.

The three men are Ross R. Myers of Chicago; Thomas Thompson, Jr., of Dundalk, Md.; and Philip E. Vaughan of West Newton, Pa.

Their three complaints ask "an accounting from the defendant" and a judgment for "all sums which may be due."

The salesmen said they had represented the company throughout much of the East and Middle West.

Man Held in Shooting

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 19 (AP)—

Joseph Hicks, 21, of Edgewater was held by Anne Arundel County police today on a charge of shooting a 59-year-old Edgewater man in the thigh Sunday night.

He is accused of firing a shotgun blast that caught James E. Moreland in the leg as Moreland stood on the edge of a cluster of people on the Solomons Island road. Emergency Hospital here reported Moreland in serious condition.

The victim is the father of an Annapolis patrolman—and one of the county investigating officers was Patrolman James Moreland, unrelated to the other two.

Elks Name L. C. Hoover

Danville, Va., Aug. 19 (AP)—L. C. Hoover of Harrisonburg was named president of the Virginia Elks Association today at the conclusion of the thirty-eighth annual meeting, and Alexandria was named as the scene of the next meeting.

B. H. Anderson of Norfolk was named first vice president, and J. H. Coleman of Lynchburg, second vice president.

George W. Epps, Jr., of Richmond, was reelected secretary, and Charles W. Proffitt treasurer.

Congressman Thomas B. Stanley of Henry delivered the memorial address this morning. The camp for underprivileged boys in Potomac County was endorsed, and the boys and means committee was authorized to proceed with fund raising plans.

Second Jail Break

Richmond, Va., Aug. 19 (AP)—

Richmond's city jail has had its second break in four days. About 9:30 a. m. today a prisoner fled from the athletic field through two unlocked gates and early this afternoon had not been apprehended.

The man was listed by police as Herbert Brockwell, 29, of Richmond, who was serving three sentences totaling 190 days, dating from July 29. He was described as 6 feet tall, with black hair and dark complexion and dressed in blue dungarees.

Friday night two men who had been working in the jail kitchen escaped by climbing a fence. They were picked up Saturday by Petersburg police.

Md. Woman Killed

Wildwood, N. J., Aug. 19 (AP)—

Genevieve Spicher, 35, of Cumberland, Md., was fatally injured today when a car in which she was riding collided with another car.

Police Sgt. James Stein reported. She died in Mace Hospital.

Joan Spicher, 22, sister of the dead woman, and Mrs. Ruth Williams, 25, of Philadelphia, were detained at Mace Hospital with possible internal injuries. Five other persons were treated at the hospital and discharged.

The dead woman and her sister arrived here Saturday to spend a week's vacation.

Jury Indicts
Kendrick in Shooting Case

John A. Kendrick, 50, former member of the old Tri-State gang, yesterday was indicted for assault with intent to kill, assault with a deadly weapon, and carrying a deadly weapon.

The charges stemmed from the attempted shooting of Kendrick's colleague of gangster days, Tommy English, last June in front of 830 10th st. sw.

Among 25 others indicted by a District grand jury yesterday was John L. England, Capitol Hotel, on a charge of pandering.

According to the complainant, Betty Cusato, 1754 Q st. nw., England got her a "date" with a soldier. She asserted England got $6 in the deal and she received nothing.

Also indicted were Stonewall Ballard, Jr., 521 23d st. se., and Samuel Ballard, 1908 23d st. se., for assault on two policemen during an altercation at Griffith Stadium July 20.

In announcing the approval of the sale by W.A.A.'s administrator Robert M. Littlejohn and the National Real Property Review Board, Blair pointed out that the sale of this facility was approved in February to Mohawk Carpet Mills, Inc., Amsterdam, N. Y., but the transaction was never consummated.

The new owners estimate an employment of more than 1000 persons with an annual payroll in excess of two million dollars.

Transit Employees
Hold Outing Today

Capital Transit employees will have their annual outing at Glen Echo today. About 4500 employees and their families are expected to attend the affair.

There will be special races and games in addition to the amusement offered at the park. The all-day event will begin at 10 a. m. and continue through the evening, when a dance will be held.

Joseph Vincent O'Hare

Requiem mass for Joseph Vincent O'Hare, 74, former real estate broker here, who died Sunday, will be held at 10 a. m. today at St. Jerome's Catholic Church, Hyattsville, Md. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. O'Hare died at Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale, Md., after an illness of two months.

A native of Washington, he was the son of George A. and Evelyn O'Hare who came to the city in 1907. He was a graduate of Gonzaga High School.

From 1891 to 1909, Mr. O'Hare was a missionary worker in Alaska. He later served in the copyright office of the Library of Congress, and with the National Recovery Administration.

In 1935 he opened O'Hare Estates, real estate agency, at 1316 L st. nw.

For the past nine years he lived with his daughter at 4409 Sheridan st., University Park. He was a member of the Holy Name Society, Knights of Columbus, and St. Jerome's Catholic Church.

He is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Nina O'Hare Wheatley, of University Park; three sisters, Mrs. Samuel S. Koonen, 1731 10th st. nw.; Mrs. Willard L. Pollard, Evanston, Ill.; Sister Cecilia O'Hare, Sister of Charity, La Salle, Ill., and three grandchildren.

Henry C. Riely

Richmond, Va., Aug. 19 (AP)—

Henry Carrington Riely, 73, native of Halifax County and member of the Virginia bar, died at his home here today after a long illness.

Private funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at the residence.

Riely, son of the late Judge John William Riely and Mrs. Emma Carrington Riely, was graduated in law from the University of Virginia in 1897. He was a communicant of St. James Episcopal Church and a member of the local, State and American Bar associations.

Surviving are his wife, the former Miss Nettie Evans, a daughter, two sons, three grandchildren, two sisters and a brother.

William J. Ennever

London, Aug. 19 (AP)—The death of William Joseph Ennever, 78, founder of the memory training system known as Peimannism, was announced last night. Peimannism utilizes the association of words, such as "cat-saucer, tea-china, laundry-shirt."

Plan Excludes 724 Beds

Richmond, Va., Aug. 19 (AP)—

A. G. Howell, director of the Bureau of Hospital Survey and Construction, said today that about 10 percent of the general hospital beds in the State, while usable, do not conform to standards for long-range hospital planning and construction program.

Of the designed capacity of 7710 beds in general hospitals in Virginia, he said, 724 were not found to be usable but not in conformity with the proposed plan now being developed by the bureau.

Howell pointed out that the policy now being used by the bureau for determination of suitability of beds excludes those hospitals having fewer than 15 beds or those whose present structure is unsafe or unsuitable for vertical or horizontal additions.

While this does not exclude those hospitals from participation in Federal funds—and in fact encourages their chances for their aid in critical areas in relation to needs throughout the State—it was felt, Howell said, that hospitals with fewer than 15 beds generally do not have the necessary diversification of medical services because of their limited size, although the services they do offer may be of the highest type.

Sewer Contract Let

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 19 (AP)—The contract for construction of the Lambert 3000-foot outfall sewer has been awarded to Leo Butler of Silver Spring, Md., whose bid was $249,900.

Announcing the letting of the contract, an official of the Hampton Roads Sanitation District Commission also disclosed that the McLean Contracting Co. of Baltimore would shortly be awarded the contract for construction of the line that will cross from the foot of Church st. to Berkley. McLean's bid was $142,250.

Beauty Shop Inspection

Richmond, Va., Aug. 19 (AP)—

The Richmond Beauty Technicians Association has announced plans to enlist the aid of other organizations in efforts to secure passage of a State law requiring sanitary inspections.

Mrs. Ellen Nester, president, said beauticians in other sections of Virginia also favor such a law.

Three-way Lens

Film Makes Color Photos

RICHARD THOMAS
Holding projection lens

Thomascolor—a new process for making color pictures on standard black and white film—was demonstrated yesterday at the Archives Building.

Inventor Richard Thomas of Los Angeles, Calif., screened color movies and stills for staff members of the Securities and Exchange Commission which has before it a Thomascolor Corp. application for approval of a 10-million-dollar common stock issue.

The technique is relatively cheap and fast, Thomas claimed, adding that it is applicable alike to Hollywood movies, television and graphic arts.

Used Special Lens

As he explained it, the process, developed after 15 years of research, uses a special optical unit which replaces the ordinary camera lens. A three-element lens assembly divides light rays emanating from the object photographed. Rays, entering the camera through a single frontal aperture, are divided by separate lenses for primary colors—red, green, blue.

The rays are then focussed through primary color filters to form three separate images on a single film.

Service Experts Attend

When these images are projected through a similar filter lens on a projector, and made to merge, an scene is produced with objects appearing in color.

No dyes, tinting or toning are used on the film which is black and white and of the panchromatic type.

Experts present at the filming, including Army and Navy photo technicians, told a reporter they found the process promising. The focus was not always sharp and wear color delineation always distinct, it was pointed out.

Miss Ethel Brewster

New York, Aug. 19 (AP)—Miss

Ethel Brewster, 61, former acting dean of Swarthmore College, died last night, apparently from an overdose of sleeping pills, police reported today.

The retired educator was found in a storage room of her niece's home in Great Neck, Long Island, with a bottle of sleeping pills in her hand, cotton in her nostrils and a handkerchief stuffed in her mouth, police said.

Mrs. Mildred Osborne told police her aunt was worried over poor health and loss of weight but appeared in good spirits yesterday.

Miss Brewster joined the faculty of Vassar College in 1914, and two years later held a similar position at Swarthmore. She was dean of women from 1921 to 1928, when she became chairman of the classical department. She was acting dean of the college in 1932-33.

William T. Posey

South Orange, N. J., Aug. 19 (AP)—

William T. Posey, who developed the United Cigar Stores Co. from a small shop that he established in Kansas City at the age of 17, died yesterday at the age of 75.

From that original tea and tobacco shop, Posey expanded his holdings until he joined with the late Charles Whitely in 1900 to found the United Cigar Stores Co., which they boosted to a nationwide string of 3000 stores by 1929.

County Retires
6 Bond Issues,
1 Dating to '12

Retirement of six bond issues of long standing in Montgomery County during this fiscal year was announced yesterday by the County Commissioners.

At the regular meeting in the Rockville Court House, the commissioners also ordered preparation of an ordinance that would crack down on many "objectionable" places of amusement in the county.

Alexander Hancock, county comptroller, told the commissioners that $723,500 of current revenue will go toward retirement of bonds issued over a period of many years.

Expenditure of $144,500, which is included in the total, will complete the retirement of six bond issues, one of them dating back to 1912, he said. He emphasized that retirement of the six issues out of current revenue "is the largest amount ever retired by this county in one year without resorting to refunding."

Largest of the six was the 1932 issue of one million dollars to finance general construction. Another in the group was a $400,000 issue of 1927 for suburban road construction.

President Brooks Johns ruled most of the comments on amusement places "off the record." It was apparent, however, that the new law would be aimed primarily at licensing certain pool halls and carnivals that have been, and are, operating in the county.

The board's counsel, F. Bernard Welsh, was ordered to prepare the ordinance for submission to the regular meeting next Tuesday. Welsh said he would leave the specific license costs up to the commissioners.

Mrs. Alma Opal of Takoma Park yesterday revived the issue of abolition of the police commission post held by Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter. Mrs. Opal said she based her request for elimination of the job on the recommendations of the Brookings Institution report made several years ago, a statement by the International City Managers Association and the fact that it had been eliminated by the charter board in its final draft of the proposed charter.

Observers pointed out the question had already been the topic of a lively debate in closed sessions of the board, but said there was little likelihood the commissioners would revive the issue.

A letter from a Washington Grove citizen, whose signature could not be read, advocated the changing of Wilson la. in Bethesda to "Two Per Cent la." It was interpreted as a commentary on the new State sales tax.

Maurice S. Jackson

Funeral services for Maurice S.

Jackson, 65, lifetime resident of Leesburg, Va., will be held today at 3 p. m. at the Colonial Funeral Home, Leesburg. Burial will be in the Leesburg Union Cemetery.

He died Monday in Leesburg after a long illness. Mr. Jackson worked for many years in a Leesburg store. At one time he was a pitcher on the Leesburg baseball team. He was a member of the Leesburg Presbyterian Church.

Survivors are his wife, Louis Steadman Jackson; two sons, William Stanley Jackson of Arlington, and Dr. Harold M. Jackson of Brookland, W. Va.; two brothers, Walter Jackson, 3100 Connecticut ave. nw., and Kenneth Forre Jackson, 207 Ascot pl. ne.; and two sisters, Mrs. Ann E. Margaret Rose 17 Tomorrow

By Helen Cathcart

ST. JAMES, LONDON, ENG. LAND.—Just 17 years ago, at the express wish of King George V, Britain's Home Secretary Clynnes hurried to statley Glamis Castle for the birth of a royal baby . . . and waited . . . and waited. A slight miscalculation had occurred despite Harley Street's crack doctors, and Mr. Clynnes was kept waiting a month before the birth of Princess Margaret.

Tomorrow Princess Margaret Rose celebrates her seventeenth birthday. In another year, in accordance with Britain's royal tradition, she achieves her coming-of-age.

What is she like, this outwardly demure Princess who must one day inevitably play a leading part in the affairs of the Empire—and is indeed second only to the throne? Four years younger than Princess Elizabeth, it is possible to imagine a tragic accident that could make her Queen of England. With Princess Elizabeth's marriage looming, her position gains new significance.

The world has come to think of her as following 21-year-old Princess Elizabeth everywhere. The truth is that Margaret is rapidly showing a will of her own. The whole royal family goes to the races, and Margaret mysteriously fails to appear. Merely because she does not care for racing. At public functions, where her sister is all smiles and graciousness, H.R.H. Margaret has sometimes been known to yawn outright.

She Ordered Plane

In South Africa, when an 80-mile motor-tour of the Cape peninsula was planned for the Princesses it was Margaret who insisted that one of the Vikings of the King's Flight should take them up instead for a swift bird's-eye view of the whole area.

Again, when Princess Elizabeth was publicly banqueted at London's traditional Guildhall, it was deemed advisable that Princess Margaret should not be present and she was not allowed in for the arrangements. At the last moment, the teen-age princess announced her intention of going. Officials were flustered, a foremost politician had to depart surreptitiously in order to give the princess his place—and his rations—but H.R.H. had her way.

She is beginning to make her own friends. When Princess Elizabeth held her first private dance at Windsor and Margaret was only a child of 14, she refused point-blank to be sent early to bed and miss the fun.

Nervous partners found they did not have to hold her at arm's length. They discovered she could invent crazy lyrics of her own to some of the dance tunes. At the Christmas staff ball at Buckingham Palace, the members of the royal family are supposed to dance with the servants. In practice the tradition is rather remote. Last year, while Princess Elizabeth chose as usual a household official, Princess Margaret lived repeatedly with a footman.

She's a Movie Fan

Now she sometimes goes to the pictures with the higher hierarchy of the palace staff or with her friends, the Strathes and Cambridges, and is a regular patron of one or two West End cinemas. Her favorite stars include James Mason, Bob Hope and Ray Milland. Lord Stanley, the young grandson of Lord Derby, one of Britain's richest peers, takes her—unaccompanied by other "royals"—to shows at the Savoy and supper afterwards at the Savoy Grill.

PRINCESS MARGARET ROSE

. . . She'll be seventeen tomorrow

Gradually, in fact, her world is widening, and she accepts few limitations. When the King and Queen attended the opera and occupied the royal box, Princess Margaret by her own choice sat in the stalls. She has announced her intention of visiting a public dance hall "just to see." Last year, when the princesses were in Devon, Elizabeth mentioned that she had never been on a "bus ride." "Nor have I," said Margaret, "and I've always wanted to." Next day they both bussed to Plymouth.

The elder sister left the "bus afterwards" like a queen. It was her initiative. Chieftains of was Princess Margaret who went to the driver and said, "My sister and I have always wanted to ride in a bus. Thanks a lot!"

Her Rumba's Fervid

It is Margaret, too, who follows the radio programs and draws her sister's attentions to star attractions. Much has been made of the fact that Princess Elizabeth dances the rumba in the West End's smart restaurants. But restaurants agree that Princess Margaret dances it better—and dances it with more fervor.

Comparisons are inevitable. Today, aware that she has been overshadowed a little and a little subdued by her sister, the royal family is encouraging Princess Margaret to act on her own initiative. Chieftains of the film studios at Pinewood and Denham are becoming accustomed to hurried calls from the palace, "Princess Margaret is coming to visit you!" The princess enjoys exchanging wisecracks with the stars, and knows how to watch from back-camera without getting in anyone's way or holding up production.

From these expeditions she often returns to the palace with a few new slang words in her vivacious repertoire.

"Wherever did you learn such slang?" the King once asked his young daughter. "At my mother's knee or some such low joint," she responded. A born mimic, she has amused her parents at times with witty impersonations of Prime Minister Attlee, Churchill, Herbert Morrison and other visitors. She enjoys writing scraps of nonsense in the Lear and Lewis Carroll style, and wrote most of the comedy scenes in the Windsor pantomimes during the war. Singing Tennyson's "Come Into the Garden, Maud," in broad Cockney accents, she made the King laugh till the tears ran down his cheeks.

Faces Official Life

Life at Buckingham Palace she once described as "life in a goldfish bowl." She has no latch key, has never been allowed to travel in a taxi and is only beginning to face her first official duties. Yet while the King and Queen often weekend in Sandringham, she has been allowed to act as part-hostess to "princess house parties" at Windsor Lodge, was in the background of Lieutenant Mountbatten's courtship and so perhaps has an outlook older than her years.

Any speculation about Princess Margaret's future husband would, of course, be premature. It seems probable that one day she will take over her mother's former title and become Duchess of York. This recalls her childhood comment when her parents became King and Queen, "I used to be Margaret of York." "And now I'm nothing!"

Third lady in the land, bubbling over with zest for fun, mercurial, intelligent, Princess Margaret Rose is growing up fast—and can no longer be Princess Nothing.

Embassy Hostess Needed

Downing Street Played Cupid To Inverchapel

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

IT'S NOT OFTEN that a government plays cupid but when Lord Inverchapel remarried his wife yesterday in Edinburgh His Majesty's Britannic Government very definitely had a fist in the pie. With the appointment of Lord Inverchapel to Washington, it was not only a social hazard to have a bachelor Ambassador, but an official embarrassment to have an envoy with a divorced wife living in the same country. Every kind of diplomatic suasion was used to coax a remarriage.

Despite his divorce, which was granted in Edinburgh in February, 1945, Lord Inverchapel, to coin a cliché, had never ceased to care. He wrote almost daily to his former wife, it was reported, and saw her whenever he went to New York.

The problem as to persuade pretty, blonde, exceedingly unpropitious Maria Teresa Diaz Salas Clark-Kerr that Washington's British Embassy provided a more rewarding existence than a less formal life in Greenwich, Conn. Obviously the Ambassador, an outstanding diplomat, hurdled this obstacle with accustomed finesse.

The new ambassador, who is one of three equally lovely sisters, is a daughter of Xavier Diaz-Lera of Santiago, and a relation by marriage of magnetic Chavela Edwards, one of Chile's outstanding hostesses. They were married in 1929, when the Ambassador, then plain Archibald Clark-Kerr, was 47 and his bride almost 30 years his junior.

The story goes that young Tita, intrigued by Clark-Kerr's apparent invulnerability to feminine wiles, bet several girl friends she could break down his resistance. They were introduced at a casually prearranged meeting at Vina del Mar, fashionable Chilean watering resort.

After their marriage Tita accompanied him to posts in Sweden, Iraq and China. Gay, beautifully dressed, she often astonished conventional officialdom. For years her English was sketchy and among the many amusing stories—most probably unauthentic—is one about an evening in Sweden when she was late to her own dinner party. She'd had an attack of "hiccups" and, explaining to the guests with exquisite politeness confused the word "hiccup" with the word buttock.

Up the Diplomatic Ladder

LORD INVERCHAPPEL is the fifth son of John Clark-Kerr and was born on an estate Dickens named Crossbasket, between Glasgow and Edinburgh. Like any of King George's approved diplomats, he has been boosted up the title ladder from an humble air to the more pretentious baron. He received a barony in 1946, selecting the name Inverchapel from an ancestral property near Lock Eck. He's covered most the world, served in World War I as a private in the Scots Guards; did an especially outstanding job in China where he lived in three uncomfortable Chungking rooms and, marked for Japanese assassination, was forced to wear a bulletproof vest when he ventured outdoors. He got on well with Stalin, their first meeting ground being a shared interest in pipe smoking.

Squarely built, handsome in a tightly buttoned way, Lord Inverchapel is regarded with mixed feelings in Washington. After the Earl of Halifax and his enchanting wife, Lord Inverchapel's brusqueness has been a shock. He dislikes the round of necessary entertainments, insists on leaving a party early, relishes making extraordinary remarks to savor a mild sensation.

The most important complaint comes, however, not from Washington's hostesses but from Congressmen, Senators and other officials. They feel Lord Inverchapel has spent too much time traveling across country, too little getting to know those who make laws and carry out a foreign policy so vital to Britain's interests. Perhaps a wife will cure the Ambassador's itching heel, make him pals with the boys on the Hill.

Lord Inverchapel and his pretty Tita are flying back from England Saturday. Then everyone will see whether or not a new era has commenced.

Farewell to the Chief

A FAREWELL PARTY is being given for Rear Admiral George A. Hussey at the Statler tonight. He's the retiring Navy Chief of Ordnance and as such headed and ran a four billion dollar corporation. George Hussey succeeded Admiral Blandy of atom bomb fame and has as follow-up Rear Admiral Albert Noble. More than a thousand are expected at the reception and dance—they're flocking in from the ordnance bureau, the naval gun factory, the powder factory to say goodbye to the boss.

Jim Forrestal and an imposing assortment of brass will be on hand. Almost as important as the Admiral is his wife, the former Phoebe Tidmarsh of Seattle. Mrs. Hussey has the most remarkable memory in captivity, naval wives claim, and no one can ever take her place.

Patricia Wiman Engaged to Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Deere Wiman of Chicago and Moline, Ill., and Santa Barbara, Calif., announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Wiman, to William Alexander Hewitt, son of Mrs. Edward T. Hewitt of San Francisco, and the late Mr. Hewitt.

Miss Wiman was graduated from Foxcroft School in Middleburg, Va., 1942, and made her debut in Chicago and Moline in June of that year. She attended Connecticut College for Women and George Washington University last year.

Mr. Hewitt is a graduate of the University of California in 1937 where he was a member of Alpha Delta Phi. He served four years in the Navy during World War II as a Lieutenant in the Pacific theater. He is a member of the Bachelors of San Francisco.

Each designer gives his or her own individual interpretation of this fall's revolutionary, high styles. Here designer Ben Reig turns out a handsome dinner dress of fine, imported black lace over a red faille, taffeta skirt. The ankle length frock features a nipped-in waistline.

Hattie Carnegie creates an elegant, practical formal in imported, pink French lace, trimmed with rhinestones. The rhinestone embroidered panel gives a slight, apron effect. This style, featuring the new high fashions for fall, was one of many shown at an employee's fashion show last night at the Washington Hotel. It was put on as an educational event by a smart F street, specialty store.

A beau catcher at any ball is this Nettie Rosenstein creation in ice-blue satin, dramatized by the new portrait neckline and a bustle back. Front of dress is straight and slim, gathering fullness at the side, and crescendoing in intricate folds in the back.

Those Revolutionary Styles— They're Here in Capital

YOU'VE BEEN hearing about revolutionary fashions in Paris—reading about high styles in New York. Well, the breath-takingly different lines are right here in Washington. First collection of the new fashions were shown last night to the employees of a chic F street specialty store.

Purpose of the show, held at the Washington Hotel, was to give the store's employees glimpses of the revolutionary styles.

There are luscious, rich colors in both daytime and evening wear. For the first time in many years, midday can feel fashion-right in bright red corderoys, American Beauty rose velveteens and flattering black velvets in all lengths.

For daytime, there are gay, wild plaids, others muted and subtler in tone. Quite the biggest shock, however, are the long, hooded, evening wraps in vari-colored plaids, slightly reminiscent in line of the proverbial "witches caps."

Of course, the portrait neckline, rounded shoulders, exaggerated hip interest are evidenced in after five and formal frocks. It isn't that the dresses aren't beautiful—many are—but you just have to get accustomed to wide, billowing skirts, tight nipped-in waist, middle of the leg lengths for streetwear and above ankles for formal.

One stunning Hattie Carnegie evening frock is made of French imported lace in a delicate pink shade. Brilliant rhinestones, first in many years, outline a front panel, giving an apron effect. With it is worn a pink, satin girdle, and a rhinestone necklace.

Another impressive number is a Nettie Rosenstein model made of ice-blue satin. The front of the dress is slim and plain, with the back cascading into intricate folds and a bustle. Neckline features the new portrait type.

Minister From Australia Is Honored Here

ARTHUR A. CALWELL, Australian Minister of Immigration and Information, and Mrs. Calwell, who will leave Washington today after a short visit, were entertained at luncheon yesterday and at a dinner at the Australian Embassy.

Luncheon hosts were the Australian Minister, Alfred Stirling and his sister, Miss Dorothy Stirling whose fête was held in the English Room of the Raleigh Hotel.

Others in the company included the Australian Ambassador and Mrs. Norman Makin; the British Minister, Sir John Mawson; Gavin Casey, retiring director of the Australian News and Information Service in New York; T. Dunabin, who succeeds Mr. Casey; Robert Armstrong, private secretary to Mr. Calwell; Gen. Ken Smart, John Hewitt, Monsignor Jordan and the press attaché of the Australian Embassy and Mrs. J. G. Bridges.

Following luncheon, the Ambassador and Mrs. Makin took Mr. and Mrs. Calwell for some sightseeing, motoring to Mount Vernon and stopping at Arlington.

The New Zealand Minister and Lady Herendsen were among the guests at the dinner last evening given by the Ambassador and Mrs. Makin.

Also attending were the Australian Minister, Alfred Stirling; Miss Stirling, Gen. Ken Smart, Miss Frances Perkins, former Secretary of Labor, and the Very Rev. Lawrence Sheehy.

Mr. Calwell will visit the Capitol tomorrow to look over the lawmakers' offices and he and Mrs. Calwell will leave for Baltimore around noon. From there they will go to Philadelphia, Chicago, Dayton, Quebec and Toronto and then to California.

In San Francisco Mr. Calwell will speak to the first contingent of Americans to set sail for Australia to make their homes, under the new Australian immigration laws.

Carlisle—Cole

The marriage of Mrs. Evelyn Comstock Cole, daughter of Mr. Elliott Moor Comstock of Ivoryton, Conn., and the late Mr. Comstock, to James Mandeville Carlisle, son of Madeville Carlisle of Washington, and the late Mr. Carlisle, took place yesterday at the home of the bride's mother.

The Rev. George E. Millard performed the ceremony which was attended only by the immediate families. The newlyweds will be at home in Washington.

Mrs. Carlisle is a graduate of Mary C. Wheeler School, Providence, R. I. Her husband was graduated from Yale University and Yale Law School.

Whitmer—Johnson

Miss Jean Elizabeth Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand A. Johnson, became the bride of Warren Lee Whitmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Whitmer, August 9 at Sixth Presbyterian Church. Capt. Clifford M. Drury, Navy chaplain, officiated. Miss Elizabeth Tew was organist and Thomas Costaggini soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore pale pink satin with a veil of illusion draped from a pink satin tiara. She carried pink roses and blue delphinium.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Helen W. Maher, the matron of honor, wore aqua faille and carried yellow roses with a matching hair bandeau. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Elizabeth Heley and Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, wore yellow and orchid and carried gladioli. Miss Martha Maher, the junior bridesmaid, wore pink trimmed in aqua and carried an old-fashioned bouquet.

The bridegroom had his father for best man and the ushers were Leonard Eiker, Ralph Melkjohn, James Heley and J. Leonard Johnson, brother of the bride.

A garden reception was held at the home of the bridegroom in Spring Valley, after which the couple left for a motor trip to Miami Beach. They will live in Washington.

CANNING is quicker these days—at least for snap beans and other low-acid vegetables—thanks to recent research by canning specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. It's been proven that such vegetables needn't be processed in a steam pressure canner nearly so long as was formerly believed necessary.

By the new method, pint jars of snap beans need be processed in a steam pressure canner nearly so long as was formerly believed necessary.

By the new method, pint jars of snap beans need be processed only 20 minutes in Washington and other areas under 2000 feet above sea level. Canning charts formerly called for a 30-minute processing period. This shorter exposure to high temperature means that you get better tasting canned beans with higher nutritive value.

Here are steps followed by Mrs. Carol Howe of Washington as she cans beans according to new directions issued by the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture:

1. Mrs. Howe starts with fresh, young snap beans—just enough for one canning batch. After cutting them into 1-inch lengths, she puts them in a kettle, covers them with water, and boils them for 5 minutes. Meanwhile she heats her canning jars in water in the pressure canner.

2. With the aid of funnel and spoon, Mrs. Howe fills the hot jars up to one-half inch of their tops. She packs the beans in loosely, covers them with the liquid in which they were cooked, and add one-half teaspoon of salt to each pint. A knife blade pushed down the jar side helps work out any air bubbles. Then, when the jar rim is wiped clean, Mrs. Howe adjusts the lid and puts each jar in the canner rack.

3. Mrs. Howe carefully lowers the rack into the hot water in the steam pressure canner. If the canner is deep enough, she may can two layers of jars at a time. A wire basket or rack must be used to keep the layers apart.

4. Exhausting the air from her canner, Mrs. Howe raises the pressure to 10 pounds (following carefully directions that came with the canner). She writes down the time, then keeps a close check on both clock and gauge to be sure pressure is kept at right level for 20 minutes of processing.

5. After taking the jars from the canner, Mrs. Howe lets them cool overnight, right side up on a rack or folded towel, in a draft-free place. Then she inspects them. Because her jars have screw bands, she takes off bands that can be removed without forcing. Next she turns each jar up to test for leaks, wipes the sealed jar clean, and labels it for future use.

For the Bathroom Laundress

A laundry aid for those who belong to the "wash-em-as-you-take-em-off" school is a new drying contraption for the bathroom. It is to be attached to the bathroom wall. The top serves as a shelf for bottles and cosmetics while underneath is a nest of rods to be used in drying. When the wash is ready the rods can be pulled out to be put to use. And when the laundry is dry they fold back inconspicuously into place. It does away with the festoons of hose and lingerie over the shower rod and towel racks.

For Picnic Basket

When baking plain cookies for the youngsters, use your imagination along with animal-shaped cookie cutters and some very novel results can be obtained. The use of currants for eyes, bits of candied cherry for mouths, thin strips of candied citron for eyebrows and a sprinkling of cinnamon for hair can change the plain round cookie into a veritable army of faces.

Too Many Cold Drinks

After a spell of hot weather a great many of us wind up with a pretty smart pain in our stomachs and we wonder how it came about. It is usually from the enormous amount of cold drinks and ice cream we consume in an effort to reduce the heat and if these were given up in favor of hot soup or a hot beverage for a few days the pain will probably disappear.

Your Baby

Right Method Formula Will Build Tissue

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

There is little doubt but that with the best intentions a mother cannot always nurse her baby. She may try and try and still find that she does not supply enough milk so the baby is satisfied. Instead, he spends his time fretting and the slow gains in weight mirror his unhappiness.

This does not mean that the baby must be weaned. This is an excellent time to try complementary formulas. The baby gets the experience of nursing, derives all the benefits to be obtained from breast milk, but is provided enough food by bottle so that he does not suffer from undernourishment, with all of its ills.

Good Trial Formula

Breast milk and cows' milk are not incompatible. The formula should be a good one. It should be prepared with the same attention to cleanliness as if it were the baby's sole sustenance. The formula itself need not be a complicated one. One-half the amount usually offered to a baby of the age and weight of the nursing one, will make a good trial formula.

Prepare the formula and divide it into exactly the same number of bottles as there are regular nursings in the day. Present the bottle at the end of the nursing period. The baby will be his own judge of how much he wants in order to reach a point of personal satisfaction.

Is Easiest Way

The reason the bottle should be a finale and not an introduction to the meal, is because bottle feeding is so much easier for the baby than breast feeding. Once he becomes acquainted with the ease with which he can get milk from the bottle nipple he will spurn the breast. If nursed first he may be hungry enough to inspire the effort needed and then when the supply is exhausted, the bottle will be just what he wants.

Bait Company Defies Massed CIO Pickets

Dowagiac, Mich., Aug. 19 (AP)—Officials of the Heddon Bait Co. said today they would keep the plant open despite mass CIO picketing that brought State police to the scene of an 11-week-old strike.

"We're not shutting the plant," Trig Lund, production manager, told reporters after a mobile picket line of automobiles driven bumper to bumper kept most of the employees off the job today.

Gov. Kim Sigler called out State police, charging that the CIO United Auto Workers were rushing outside "goon squads" to the aid of the Dowagiac strikers.

In union parance, goon squads are roving bands of pickets available for duty at any potential trouble spot on a strike front.

"This whole business started in Michigan a few years ago," Sigler told State Police Commissioner Donald S. Leonard, "and this is a good time to stop it."

Mayor James L. Black had appealed to the Governor.

Approximately 270 members of Local 796, UAW-CIO, walked out of the fishing tackle manufacturing firm June 9 in a demand for a 10-cent-an-hour wage increase.

The company offered a 6-cent hourly wage boost plus individual wage adjustments that it said totaled from 1 to 10 cents additional.

Lund said the average wage in the plant was 80 cents hourly for women and $1.15 for men.

He said strikers began returning to their jobs the first week of the walkout and that the company immediately granted the wage increase it had offered. By last Saturday, he asserted, "70 per cent" of the strikers were back at work.

Heat Idles 48,000
Detroit, Aug. 19 (AP)—Chrysler Corporation car and truck assembly lines were closed today and an estimated 22,000 production workers idled by heat walkouts in key departments.

An additional 45,000 employees of Briggs Manufacturing Co. also quit or were sent home. The weather Bureau said the temperature at the time was 83 degrees and rising.

At the Dodge main plant, 11,500 employees were sent home.

2000 in Va. Guard

Richmond, Va., Aug. 19 (AP)—Virginia's National Guard now totals more than 2000 men and officers, according to Adjutant General S. Gardner Waller. As of August 15, the Guard had 242 officers, 15 warrant officers, and 1748 enlisted men. The increase since July 31 was reported as 84.

Grain Export To Top Record Of Last Year

America this year is sending more grain to the world's food-deficit countries than ever before, far exceeding last year's all-time record for any nation in history.

Yesterday the Agriculture Department announced the allocation of 45,685,000 bushels for shipment in October, made up mainly of wheat or wheat flour, with comparatively small amount of barley and grain sorghums.

This brings the allocation for the first four months of the fiscal year to the enormous total of 215,000,000 bushels a year.

Little Corn Included
Last year, by strenuous effort, this Nation succeeded in shipping 563,000,000 bushels, a record that exceeded earlier hopes and brought special note of commendation from President Truman.

The 215 million bushels allocated for the first four months of the new year compares with 150 million in the same period last year. However, due to strikes and other interferences last year, only 108 million bushels were shipped during that period, while this year's shipments are keeping up with allocations.

This year's shipments include practically no corn, although last year more than 105 million bushels was corn.

Early in July the Department canceled an allocation of 213,500 long tons of corn (about 80 million bushels) and announced it would be replaced by wheat.

Wheat Proportion Up
The proportion of milled flour to whole grain wheat is also being reduced. This change in policy was first indicated in the September allocations. Last year wheat shipments consisted of about 45 per cent flour. This proportion has dropped this year to about 25 per cent.

The October allocations of 45,685,000 bushels total 1,213,400 long tons. Chief recipients will be: British and American zones in Germany 259,000 tons; French zone, 11,000; Japan and Ryukyus, 79,000; Korea, 32,000 (all barley); France, 126,000 tons; Italy, 115,500 tons; United Kingdom, 71,500; India and Pakistan, 78,500; Austria, 53,500; Belgium and the Netherlands, 46,000 each; Greece, 45,000; Ireland, 20,500; China, 23,000; Mexico, 28,000; and Switzerland, 29,000.

Please list the reasons why egg whites on a meringue pie become watery and flat.
DESPERATE.
Reasons for watery, flat meringue include the following: (1) Weak, thin whites from stale eggs. (2) Improper beating. (3) Adding sugar too fast. (4) Having the oven too hot. (5) Cooling too fast. Be sure to buy your eggs in a store where they are kept under refrigeration. Keep them in the refrigerator constantly at home, and don't keep them too long before using.

The following directions for making meringue may be helpful: If you are beating eggs by hand (rather than with an electric mixer), use a wire whisk and a platter or bowl. Beat meringue constantly until it is spread on the pie. Before you start beating, add one-fourth teaspoon of salt and two teaspoons of water (optional) to every two eggs. Whip until frothy, then add one-fourth teaspoon they are stiff but not too dry. Beat cream of tartar. Whip eggs until in four tablespoons granulated or confectioners' sugar, adding only one-half teaspoonful at a time. Beat in one-half teaspoon of vanilla. After the ingredients are combined, continue beating meringue for several minutes until it holds its shape well. Pile lightly on filled pie shell and spread with spatula. Bake in a slow oven (300° F.) for 15 to 20 minutes. Permit it to cool slowly out of the way of drafts.

Is it possible to paint a water-fall walnut bedroom suite successfully? I have fallen heir to one and would like to paint it gray or ivory?
A. Y.
If the surface has a high gloss and is in good condition, it should not be difficult to paint this suite successfully. Wash the furniture with soap and water and sponge with clear water. Let the wood dry thoroughly, then apply quick-drying enamel. Follow the paint manufacturer's instructions regarding drying time and the number of coats to apply.

If the present finish on the furniture is marred, the painting job will be more difficult. It will be necessary to use varnish remover and sandpaper to clean off the old finish before applying paint.

In soaking a brown and white skirt, I forgot and left in the solid brown jacket. It faded on the skirt, which is now a yellowish color after I dipped it in chlorine solution and even resorted to boiling. Is there any way to bring the colors clear again?
P. L.
It looks as though clearing the colors in this skirt is an impossible job. How about stripping out the color and redyeing the skirt tan or some other color that will go with the brown jacket?

What is the best way to clean tile walls?
C. K. L.
Walls of tile—ceramic, moulded plastic, or porcelain enamel—can be easily cleaned by washing with warm, mild soap and a cellulose sponge. Rinse with a sponge wrung out of clear, warm water and dry with a soft cloth.

Some People Will Do Anything To Make a Fast Buck

Mrs. William Ransohoff of 208 Delaware Hall, Arlington Farms, Va., passes along a tip on a new kind of auto racket.

Hubby Bill advertised his 1941 Chevrolet for sale, and of course got many offers to buy at the advertised price.

He finally decided to sell the car to a man who pleaded that he needed it desperately for his "wife and two kiddies."

Several days later the Ransohoffs discovered that the man with the "wife and two kiddies" was the agent for a used car lot.

Quite by accident, they found their Chevy displayed on the lot—with the price upped $200.

PEOPLE ARE FUNNIER THAN ANYBODY DEPT.

Radio programs which send participants out to do all sorts of things to unsuspecting strangers are a source of never-ending amusement to me.

For example, the other day WTOP's "You're the Top" program dreamed up this assignment for pretty Shirley Wolfson of 4822 Montgomery lane, Bethesda, Md.:

Shirley was given a bride's courage and told to accost the first man she met with, "Have you seen George? I was supposed to marry George today."

The first man Shirley met outside the studio was a policeman, and she dutifully carried out her assignment. You can imagine her amazement when the cop replied:

"My name is George, lady."

Incidents like this should convince all doubters that radio has finally come into its own as a great force for enlightenment and public welfare. Sometimes I wonder how our ancestors got along so well without it.

I DUNNO—WHY?

A. S. C. wants to know why men invariably judge women by their looks, over which they have no control, rather than by their accomplishments?

INFORMATION PLEASE

A secretary in the office of Congressman Cole of Kansas sends me a marked copy of the "Alcoa Aluminum News Letter."

The marked article tells of the use of stuffed owls (made of aluminum, of course) to frighten away starlings that had become too numerous in Decatur, Ill.

It's suggested that the District should also try stuffed owls in its perennial battle with the starlings—but my memory tells me that we tried that stunt once, and it flopped.

Does anybody remember the details?

SHHH! FIGHTERS AT WORK

If you've never noticed this before, the next time you're at the fights watch the seconds crouched in each man's corner.

There's a rule that the handlers must neither coach their men orally nor signal to them in any way.

But like all fight fans, the seconds want to yell encouragement at critical moments, and I get a bang out of watching them struggle to control themselves.

Every time words form on their lips, a steady-eyed official fixes them with a 50-kilowatt look that stifles the yell before it's born.

Helen Shows Mary How to Kiss

New York—Mary MacArthur, the 17-year-old daughter of Helen Hayes and Charles MacArthur, is making a summer stock tour with Lillian Gish in "The Marquise." Before the show opened at the Dennis Playhouse Helen Hayes attended a rehearsal and was displeased with one phase of her daughter's performance. She thought that the scenes in which Mary kissed two young men weren't performed realistically. "You come with me," Miss Hayes told her daughter, "and bring those two young men." She pointed to the first young man and said: "There's nothing wrong with him, Mary. Kiss him." The star hovered over her daughter, teaching the girl how to kiss and be kissed by the two young men in the play—until she thought the performance satisfactory.

Charles MacArthur stood by, observing his wife rehearsing his daughter for 25 minutes in the art of kissing. "Helen, dear," MacArthur reminded her, "do you realize that after the show leaves Dennis, there'll be performances in six other theaters—and in each theater Mary will be kissing another pair of young men?" Miss Hayes nodded, and continued the rehearsal of her daughter in how to kiss. "Helen, dear," MacArthur said, "remember your responsibility as a mother..." "I assume full responsibility," replied Miss Hayes, "but only for her art and not her virtue."

Senator Brian McMahon of Connecticut has been a patient at Doctors Hospital for the past week. He expects to remain there for another week. Gertrude Lawrence signed a contract to appear in "The Lady Maria" at Marblehead, at the highest salary in the history of summer theaters: $4000 a week and half of the profits. The performances are given in the large auditorium of the Marblehead High School. Miss Lawrence will net $8000 a week for seven performances. J. Edgar Hoover, who has been on a West Coast inspection tour, had a routine physical check-up last week at Scripps Memorial Hospital in San Diego.

One of the stories which Howard Hughes intended to break, when his testimony was halted by the sudden postponement of the Senate investigating committee hearings, concerned a partnership agreement between Pan American Airways and the United States Government for the building of resort hotels throughout Latin America. The United States Government was to put up 24 million dollars, Pan Am one million dollars—but the profits were to be on a 50-50 basis. John Ringling North, who has recaptured control of the circus, is in New York to reorganize his production crew. North will go to Europe for another attempt to bring here The World's Greatest Juggler—who is a former Nazi soldier. Maurice Chevalier will resume his tour here in October.

One of the most unusual parties ever given in Manhattan was a conceited by the Marquis of Done, Count, a Baron, a Hamilton, a Gal, who now is visiting here. The King—and a Marquis.

Old Songs

The simple songs of years gone by . . . Come back to me today . . . Reminding me of happiness . . . I had along the way . . . The songs I sang when I was young . . .
And the songs I sang tonight . . .
The melodies that made me cry . . . When I was feeling blue . . . They are a sort of diary . . . Of dreams that I have known . . . Wherever
I have wandered and . . .
The changing winds have blown . . . And now they all come back to me . . . Like ghosts of yesteryears . . . To
past . . . with all its smiles and tears . . . The simple songs, the sweeter songs . . .
Of years and years gone by . . . That fill my heart with memories . . . And leave a

Glove colors soar to new heights of imagination for Fall! You'll want a whole wardrobe of these treasured Amersuedes (double woven rayons) to play up the tones in your Fall costumes. Think of finding six shades in the beige-to-brown range alone . . . of the wonderful contrasting and matching possible with the rich wines, greens and greys. Sizes 6 to 7½ in the new gauntlet length to be worn slightly crushed. Choice of whip-stitch or kip seam.

Van Raalte Hands You Color in Hosiery

Colors in nylons . . . more subtle than ever! You'll never again be satisfied with just one shade, when you see the happy harmonies Van Raalte has worked out for your wardrobe colors. You'll want MIST (deep, but not too deep) to wear with vivid colors . . . SMOKETONE (deep taupe) for very dark costumes . . . SHADOW (warm, burnished) for light, bright shades. Remember these are the only stockings with Flex toe for toe-coddling comfort. Sizes 8½ to 11.
